'Impossible' Bear Thriving at Zoo . . .

Oh, brother, does my back itch . . . !

I love to just roll around . . .

Oh, me, what a struggle to get up . . .

GENETIC WONDER OF WONDERS—The National Zoo's "impossible" bear cub, offspring of hybrid parents, which wasn't expected to live when it was born three months ago, is still alive and well, fat and healthy. These exclusive pictures are the first made of the male cub trying to walk. It can only stand a few seconds, take a step or two and then collapse. The youngster, still bottle-fed, has an Alaskan Brown bear mother and a Polar bear father. Dr. William Mann, zoo director, has named the cub Gene, after genetics

Excise Cuts Up to Billion Tax Bill Goal

Truman's Request For Net Increase In Revenue Appears Beyond Expectation

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Sentiment crystallized in a House Ways and Means Committee Democratic conference late yesterday for cuts up to about one billion dollars in war excise taxes, largely offset by a revenue pick-up from other tax fields.

No votes were taken and only highly tentative agreements were reached by the committee's 15-man Democratic majority.

But one member predicted the group will stand practically as a unit against a Republican motion to confine tax action this session to excise tax cutting.

Prepping for Monday's executive session of the House Ways and Means Committee, kicking off formal action on the President's tax recommendations, committee Democrats concluded three days of party huddles.

Rayburn Participates

Speaker Sam Rayburn and House Majority Leader John W. McCormack (D., Mass.) sat in, off and on, with the committee majority in the sometimes hot and heavy exchange of party tax views.

"I would hate very much to report out a bill that would cut revenue," Ways and Means Chairman Robert L. Doughton (D., N. C.) told newsmen when the conference broke up.

Asked if the committee might raise any extra revenue, Doughton said:

"It doesn't look very hopeful, but we might do it."

Doughton added that in his own personal opinion the committee wouldn't cut excise taxes any more than a billion dollars, if it cut them that much.

Balance Is Main Hope

Other members indicated that the best most committee Democrats hoped for was to plug enough loopholes and raise enough additional revenue to balance the excise tax cut.

President Truman recommended only 655 million dollars in "selected" war excise tax cuts on condition that the revenue be recaptured, chiefly by plugging tax loopholes. He asked Congress to raise an additional billion dollars from increased levies on big corporations, inheritances and gifts.

Mr. Truman made it pretty plain he would veto any bill that did not at least balance cuts with new revenue.

Committee Democrats have practically abandoned hope of picking up the extra billion but will make a real effort to "balance" the excise tax cut.

Some of them doubt even this minimum objective can be achieved.

Corporate Boosts Shunned

Most of the tentative agreements reached yesterday were contingent on the committee's success in loophole plugging. Some of the "loopholes" themselves, such as the oil depletion allowance, are subject of intra-party controversy and are

Housing Bill Fight Begun By Senate

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Administration forces yesterday opened up an admittedly tough battle for passage of an omnibus housing bill including the controversial section for aid to cooperative housing of middle-income groups.

The Senate agreed to begin voting next Wednesday afternoon.

Opening arguments for the revised measure of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, Chairman Burnet R. Maybank (D., S. C.) told the Senate the cooperative housing section has been revised to meet the objections of the Federal Reserve Board.

Senator John Bricker (R., Ohio) has introduced an amendment to strike out the middle-income provisions.

Substitute Section Offered

An amendment in the nature of a substitute for the middle-income section has been introduced by Senators Charles Tobey (R., N. H.) and Irving M. Ives (R., N. Y.). In effect this would put the cooperatives under FHA, and would require 4½ percent interest on the loans over a 40-year period. Tobey noted on the floor that the Federal Reserve Board has criticized the low interest—about 3¼ percent and the long amortization period of about 25 or 30 years in the bill. He said the revisions of the committee did not meet these objections.

Maybank said the committee had reduced the amount of authorizations and insurance "in keeping with the hearings held with the Federal Reserve Board in our efforts not to pass any legislation that would be in the least inflationary."

"Title III (the cooperative section) now conforms largely to the thoughts expressed by the Federal Reserve Board in that it is now an insurance guaranty of 95 percent, and an added 5 percent is to be paid periodically over a period of 20 years and ¼ of 1 percent per year to cover any losses which might occur."

Guarantees Are Reduced

Maybank also pointed out that the original amount of insurance and guarantees that was presented in the amendments for hearings totaled six billion. The committee reduced that to three billion, six hundred million in the pending bill.

"The safety of these obligations and their payments can only be judged by past experience," Maybank declared, "and I am pleased to report to the Senate that since the inception of the Government housing programs more than 18 billion dollars has been authorized, of which 8 billion dollars has already been paid back.

"The total losses of all the housing programs amount to some 26 million dollars and when one thinks of the 18-billion-dollar figure, this is a most remarkable accomplishment."

Senator John Sparkman (D., Ala.), one of the sponsors of the bill, and chairman of the subcom-

Express Rates Will Rise Again Under ICC Order

A 25-million-dollar-a-year rate increase for the Railway Express Agency was authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday.

The agency, wholly owned by the Nation's major railroads, will be allowed to increase its charges 10 percent on all first and second class express shipments moving in less than carload lots. That takes in the bulk of the agency's business.

The increases do not apply to newspapers and some other commodities usually shipped in bulk.

The rate boost, fourth granted the agency since the end of the war, takes effect after 30 days public notice.

Kimball Escapes Injury as Plane Hits Power Line

Salt Lake City, March 10 (U.P.)—Undersecretary of Navy Dan Kimball early today had a close call when his plane brushed into a 44,000-volt power line while landing here.

The nose wheel of the four-engined transport carrying Kimball and a party of 12 struck the top "common ground" cable of a four-wire transmission line a half mile south of the field.

The cable cut the wheel and bent the four propellers, but the plane landed safely and no one was injured. A witness said that if the plane had been three feet lower and struck one of the main wires "it would have crashed in flames for sure."

Gubitchev To Quit U. S. On March 20

Convicted Red Spy Sailing Homeward On Batory, Flight Vessel of Eisler

New York, March 10 (NYHT).—Valentin A. Gubitchev intends to accept the offer to return to Moscow in lieu of a 15-year jail sentence as a convicted spy, it was learned today.

The 33-year-old third secretary of the Soviet Ministry of Foreign Affairs is expected to set sail on Monday, March 20, aboard the Gdynia America liner Batory—the same vessel on which Gerhart Eisler, alleged No. 1 Communist here, fled as a stowaway last May. Gubitchev's deportation was recommended by the State and Justice Departments.

In Washington today Secretary of State Dean Acheson called in Soviet Ambassador Alexander Panyushkin for a ten-minute conference to notify him officially of Gubitchev's choice, jail or deportation.

Shortly before this conference, Senator Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Nebr.), charged in Washington that Acheson "conspired" with Attorney General J. Howard McGrath to save Gubitchev from jail in order to "appease" the Kremlin.

Panyushkin Tight-Lipped

(Panyushkin was tight-lipped when he emerged from the brief conference with Acheson, the United Press reported.

"You are more informed than I. It dealt with Gubitchev, and I have nothing else to say," he said.

Asked if Acheson mentioned the Vogeler case, he replied curtly:

"No comment."

The State Department issued a statement saying only that Acheson "officially" informed Panyushkin of the decision in the Gubitchev case. It added that "there was no mention of anything else."

Judge Sylvester Ryan sentenced Gubitchev and Judith Coplon each to 15 years imprisonment on Thursday, two days after they were found guilty on espionage conspiracy charges.

However, Judge Ryan, at the request of the government, gave Gubitchev the chance to receive a suspended sentence by going home within two weeks, never to return to these shores.

Await Bail Ruling

Both defendants were still in jail today, eagerly awaiting a decision on their request to be let out on bail pending appeal of their convictions. In order for Gubitchev to be freed on bond before his departure he had to file an appeal notice, which he did through his lawyer, Abraham L. Pomerantz. Miss Coplon's lawyers did likewise.

The decision on whethey they will be allowed bond, to be made by Judge Thomas W. Swan, of United States Court of Appeals, will not be before Monday at the earliest. The judge, after receiving briefs from the defense lawyers today, gave the Government until Monday to file its reply.

Miss Coplon had been out in

Pact on Saar Unites Parties In West Zone

Bonn, March 10 (AP).—Political parties of all hues lined up behind the West German government for the first time today to protest against the French-Saar pact.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer told Parliament he will protest to the Western Allies, and received immediate support of his strongest political opponent, Social Democratic Leader Kurt Schumacher.

The disputed agreement gave the Saar almost total autonomy in return for assigning its coal output to France for 50 years.

The Bonn government yesterday declared any possible severance of the Saar from Germany should be determined by a plebiscite of the Saarlanders.

A French Foreign Office spokesman declared in Paris that France will not enter into any talks with West Germany over the Saar. United States officials in Washington said the United States is opposed to a Saar plebiscite at this time. They viewed the demand as a political move to build up Adenauer's prestige in West Germany.

Flying Discs Photographed Paper Reports

Mexico City, March 10 (AP).—The newspaper Excelsior today quoted astronomer Luis Enrique Erro as saying one of his colleagues recently photographed a strange and brilliant object in the skies, possibly a big meteorite.

Erro is head of the Tonantzintla Observatory, near Puebla, which has been cooperating with the Harvard Observatory in studies of the Milky Way.

The photograph was taken just before dawn March 2, the astronomer said.

"An exceptional object flew through space and crossed the field of our Schmidt telescope," he said. "Since that day we have been wondering what it was. We don't know."

At Juarez, Mexican border officers reported today they saw a top-like disc traveling high in the sky and heading for mountains on the edge of El Paso. The officers included Roberto Antorena, health department; Amilcar Lopez Sousa, chief of the agriculture office, and Manuel Espejo, customs inspector.

Luis Herrera, Juarez travel agency owner, reported that about two hours later he watched a flying saucer over the city for about 15 minutes. At El Paso, John E. Baird said he got out of his car to watch a flying saucer as he passed through Deming.

Erro gave Excelsior the photo taken by the observatory. It showed a broad white streak diagonally across a jet black field. He said it was taken by astonomer Luis Munch, who was photographing with the telescope and who caught it by chance.

Erro said his guess is that the streak was caused by a meteorite, but added: "I make it with many reservations." He explained:

"In such a case it would have appeared to be about the diameter of the moon and at least as bright. It is almost certain a thing of such gigantic proportions would have been observed, and with great surprise, by others."

Asked if it could nave been a flying saucer, Erro pointed out that various countries are experimenting with automatic defense against a sudden attack from the skies.

Former FBI Expert Ends Tests

Barrett, Maher Press Probe Of Police Call Book Erasures

By Benjamin Bradlee and Alfred E. Lewis
Post Reporter

Investigation of altered Third Precinct records was completed yesterday, and the controversial documents were returned to Chief of Police Robert J. Barrett.

Charles A. Appel, jr., former FBI ace who testified in the Lindbergh kidnaping case, was revealed as the handwriting and ink identification expert making the investigation.

Appel has had the documents in his combination home and office at 3383 Stephenson pl. nw. since March 7, the day they were discovered and set off new explosions in the Police Department feud.

Barrett claims erasures in the Patrol System Signal Book of the Third Precinct indicates some persons—still unidentified — perjured themselves in testifying before the House District subcommittee investigating Washington crime.

Appel was "not available" at his home yesterday, but his wife reported he had "finished with his investigation and sent the records back to the Police Department."

Barrett and Police Department Counsel Daniel B. Maher were closeted until after 6:30 p. m. on "very important" matters. Both refused to talk to reporters.

At one point Barrett was called on the telephone and said, "Listen, you're interrupting a very important conference" and hung up. Later, Maher did the same thing.

Two Third Precinct officers were summoned to police headquarters late yesterday, less than two hours after they were questioned by The Washington Post. They are Pvt. James Salt and Lieut. Henry H. Heflin.

Salt, Third Precinct clerk, denied making the erasures.

He was asked if it were true he made the erasures at 9 a. m., January 31 after making an administrative error in putting the words "acting lieutenant" after the name of a sergeant.

"I can't recall the date," Salt an-

Soviet Speeches Hint a New Bid For Resumption Of Negotiations

Moscow, March 10 (U.P.).—Vice Premier Viacheslav Molotov said tonight there will be danger of war as long as capitalism exists, but that Russia is vitally interested in a long-lasting peace.

Because the possibility of war is inevitable under capitalism, Molotov said, measures must be taken by the partisans of peace to avert war.

Molotov spoke at a rally in anticipation of a parliamentary election Sunday.

He said that yesterday capitalists were making threats with the atomic bomb and today they were threatening with a nonexistent hydrogen bomb, but that did not frighten Russia.

(According to previous Moscow dispatches this was the first time a Russian leader or a Moscow newspaper has used the term hydrogen bomb. Ever since President Truman's announcement January 31 that he had authorized production of the H-bomb it had been called merely a superbomb in Moscow.)

Molotov's speech came on the heels of another election speech by his fellow Vice Premier and Politburo member, Georgi M. Malenkov, who said Russia was ready to engage in any genuine negotiations toward peace.

Taken in conjunction with somewhat similar statements made in election speeches by Politburo members Marshal Klementi E. Voroshilov and Lavrenti P. Beria, foreign observers saw in it a bid for possible resumption of East-West negotiations.

(It was indicated that Molotov's speech was intended as a major policy pronouncement and that it was addressed to the world at large rather than to the workers in Moscow who heard it. It might be inferred also that Molotov, released from the Foreign Ministry to concentrate on broad policy questions, still is the real director of Soviet foreign affairs.)

Molotov said Russia believes firmly in the possibility of the coexistence of two systems, capitalist and Communist, in peaceful competition.

Streptomycin Suit Asks Half Profits As Codiscoverer

Trenton, N. J., March 10 (AP).—A former Rutgers University graduate student today accused Dr. Selman A. Waksman of misrepresenting himself as the sole discoverer of the so-called wonder drug, streptomycin.

Albert Schatz, of Brooklyn, filed a suit claiming he was codiscoverer.

He asked the court to direct Dr. Waksman and the Rutgers Research and Endowment Foundation to pay him what it shall "find to be due him."

All profits from the manufacture and sale of the drug have been assigned by Dr. Waksman to the foundation.

Waksman's attorney said Schatz's claim was "entirely without merit."

Draft By Ho Reported

London, March 10 (U.P.).—Radio Moscow reported tonight that the Indo-Chinese rebel regime of Ho Chi-minh has ordered a general mobilization of citizens between 18 and 45.

The broadcast, quoting the Communist Viet Minh radio, said citizens in territory held by Ho's forces would be called up for two years' service.

House Group Assails Farm Union's Tactics

'For Basic Policy'

GOP Group Offers New Farm Plan

By The Associated Press

A House Labor Subcommittee yesterday rejected in biting language the National Farm Labor Union's accusations of improper working conditions at the Di Giorgio Fruit Corp. farms in California.

A majority report of the subcommittee said there is no basis for the union's accusations.

The corporation's farms cover 18 square miles.

The committee majority accused the union of distributing a propaganda film against the company which it called "a shocking collection of falsehoods, almost wholly unrelieved by any regard whatever for the truth and the facts."

Representative Bailey (D., W. Va.), a member of the subcommittee, announced he would file a minority report within a few days.

Representatives Werdel (R., Calif.), Nixon (R., Calif.), Morton (R., Ky.) and Sted (D., Okla.), signed the majority report. They declared:

"The way in which the union presented its evidence shows that this committee has been induced to spend its time and the taxpayers' money to publicize the leadership of a labor organization which has no contracts, no grievances, no strike, no pickets, and only a handful of members; its only apparent reason for existence is its voluble leaders."

The majority report concentrated much of its fire on a film entitled "Poverty in the Valley of Plenty," which it said the union prepared and circulated under representations that it portrayed living and working conditions on the farms.

The subcommittee majority found that workers on the Di Giorgio farms have satisfactory housing and that "disreputable, filthy shacks" shown in the film are not located on them.

Meanwhile, the AFL union told President Truman yesterday an estimated 100,000 children of jobless American farm workers are starving while big-scale farm operators continue to import workers from Mexico.

NFLU President H. L. Mitchell urged Mr. Truman in a letter to take immediate action to remedy the situation.

Mitchell said the plight of 100 children found starving at a migratory workers camp near Phoenix, Ariz., is not an isolated case. He called it "merely a symptom of a grave problem." He said 100,000 or more could be found suffering from a similar condition.

He urged the President to abrogate immediately the international agreement with Mexico which permits the importation of Mexicans for farm work.

Elk Point, S. Dak., March 10 (U.P.) Axel J. Beck, chairman of the Republication National Committee's subcommittee on agriculture, today recommended a long-range farm plan which he said should be self-financing, provide for full parity prices and be farmer-administered.

In a report to his subcommitte, Beck said the objectives outlined in his recommendations should be submitted to Republican Congressmen as "suggestions for the basic farm policy of the Republican party."

He said the "negative philosophies of curtailed production" should be rejected.

Beck said the Republican Party must have a long-range farm plan "if it expects to win the confidence of the farm-belt voters."

He listed these 10 proposals:

1. Administration by farmer-elected local committees and State directors, and a national board appointed by the President, a majority of which shall be State directors or persons who have held such positions.

2. Full parity on all cash nonperishable crops, restricted only by marketing quotas on each farm when on August 15 of any year the total estimated national supply of a commodity exceeds 150 percent of the predicted requirements for the next year.

3. Full parity on all feed nonperishable crops, limited only by acreage restrictions when the supply on December 1 of any year exceeds 150 percent of its assigned production.

4. Unrestricted livestock production, supported at full parity at market by Government purchases. Any losses from sales or accrued surplus would be financed by a $1 fee per hundred pounds imposed on the killing sale of all livestock. The fee could be increased up to $2 per hundredweight in event of a marketing emergency, or suspended when it is not required.

5. Support of egg and dairy products at full parity price levels by a fee on the products marketed under the same general plan as provided for livestock.

6. Maintenance of prices on semiperishable crops at full parity levels under a Government quota system.

7. Provision for on-farm storage facilities for non-perishable feed crops.

8. Provision for soil conservation.

9. Encouragement of research on new uses of agricultural products.

10. Establishment of a flexible tariff at parity level for all agricultural products.

Salesmen Ask Coverage in Security Law

A plea for Social Security coverage for the Nation's commission salesmen was given the Senate Finance Committee yesterday.

Marshall J. Mantler of Atlanta, director of the Bureau of Salesmen's National Association, said proposed changes in the Social Security law should make clear the employe status of salesmen.

Olga Ross, New York, speaking for the National Council of Salesmen's Organization, Inc., said the salesmen "stand greatly in need of this economic protection."

The committee is hearing testimony on a bill passed by the House last year to provide old age and survivors insurance benefits to many persons not now covered.

Mantler said the salesmen he represents differ from door-to-door salesmen in that they sell merchandise only to retailers for resale. The others, he said, sell at retail.

He said some salesmen are covered by the present Social Security law but others are not.

He observed that the return of a buyers' market has resulted in retailers buying less and requiring more frequent calls by salesmen. This, he went on, increases the operating cost of salesmen.

Salesmen, except for the so-called independent contractors, "differ in no other way from other types of employes included in the Social Security Act."

Cut of Billion in Excises, Offset by Other Boosts, Is Forecast

likely to be sidetracked by the full committee. Each hole left unplugged will diminish committee prospects of achieving a "balanced bill." There is little enthusiasm for resorting to Mr. Truman's next most lucrative tax source—an increase in corporate rates.

Chief differences among the Democrats revolved around what 1941, 1942 and 1943 excises should be cut in addition to the "urgent" list submitted by the President.

Some members would like to repeal the whole wartime schedule, excepting only liquor, tobacco and gasoline levies, but that would involve a two-million-dollar loss.

Reed To Start Fight

Split 15 ways on the excise tax question when the conferences first opened, Democrats yesterday appeared generally agreed on only one rule-of-thumb.

It is this: Priorities should be given to those industries that can show definite hardships resulting from war excises. Unemployment within the industry would be considered one test.

At the outset of Monday's full committee meeting, Representative Daniel A. Reed (R., N. Y.) plans to aim the first Republican grenade—a motion to forget about offsetting revenue and consider only an excise cut bill.

Committee Democrats yesterday made only one flat forecast—that they would have enough votes to defeat the Reed motion.

Senate Opens Housing Fight

mittee which worked on the measure, told the Senate the measure is designed to meet the needs of families of modest means who make too much to be eligible for public housing, but not enough to buy or rent suitable quarters at present prices.

"The big gap in our housing program today is the lack of adequate home construction at prices or rents within the means of a broad range of families of moderate income," Sparkman said.

He estimated that under the proposed cooperative program, a four-and-a-half-room dwelling costing $8000 could be operated successfully on a basis of $64.67 monthly rent, compared with $90.32 for a comparable unit under the regular FHA program covering large scale housing projects.

In addition to the cooperative housing section, the bill proposes an increase of $1,750,000,000 in available FHA insurance of home loans by banks and other private lending institutions; an additional 250 million dollars of FHA loan insurance for home repairs and modernization; 150 million dollars in 4 percent, 25-year direct Government loans to veterans unable to borrow money from banks; 300 million dollars in Federal loans to colleges and universities for student and faculty housing, and 25 million dollars in RFC loans to aid in marketing prefabricated houses built with the aid of RFC financing.

Confused Retail Food Prices Blamed on Supports by U. S.

Confused food prices in Washington retail stores were blamed yesterday by local grocers on Government price supports.

In many stores:

1. Florida potatoes were selling for more than Florida oranges or grapefruit.

2. New potatoes, once considered a luxury until early summer, were selling for less than old potatoes. One store chain was selling top-grade Maine potatoes at five pounds for 29 cents; elected Idaho bakers at two pounds for 25 cents and Florida new potatoes at three pounds for 19 cents.

Some New York and Pennsylvania potatoes were selling for as low as 10 pounds for 33 cents.

In the meantime, the Agriculture Department reported that it is having virtually no success in its efforts to give away Maine potatoes to any welfare group that will pay the freight to haul them away.

McMahon 'Shocked' By Fuchs Confession

Senator McMahon (D., Conn.) said he was "shocked" at what he ead yesterday in the full confession of Dr. Klaus Fuchs, the British scientist convicted of giving atomic-hydrogen secrets to Russia.

McMahon is chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee whose members got their first look at the full confession. He declined to disclose any details.

The committee met behind closed doors with Atomic Energy Commission members to discuss the confession of Fuchs, German-born scientist now serving 14 years for violating the British official secrets act.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation obtained the confession from the British government and in turn made it available to the committee.

McMahon said the committee decided at the meeting to start public hearings on civil defense next Friday with AEC officials the first witnesses. He said a second public hearing will be held April 20.

He said the committee spent considerable time studying the Fuchs confession. He said Dr. Henry D. Smythe, scientist member of the AEC, "was most helpful in interpreting" it.

McMahon was asked if Fuchs had given the Soviets any information on the hydrogen bomb, on which development work has been ordered in this country. He replied:

"It has been announced that he transmitted information to Russia on the hydrogen bomb. We were, of course, interested in a description of everything he gave to them, including information on that subject."

A reporter wanted to know if the full confession was "more shocking" than the news of the Fuchs arrest and the partial information made available at that time.

"I was shocked then and I'm shocked now," he said.

U. S. Told of Fuchs In 1946, Paper Says

Montreal, March 10 (AP).—The Ensign, a Roman Catholic weekly newspaper, says Canada informed the Unted States and British authorities in 1946 that Dr. Klaus Fuchs was involved in spying for Russia.

The newspaper, without naming any source, said the U. S. Federal Bureau of Investigation wanted to investigate Fuchs then, but was not permitted to probe atomic espionage until 1947.

The Ensign said it received proof a week ago that Canada had passed its suspicions on to the British and American governments. It said Canada's royal commission on espionage knew in 1946 that Co. Vasilly M. Rogov, leader of a Soviet embassy spy ring in Ottawa, had disclosed Fuchs' role as a spy to Igor Gouzenko, the Soviet embassy clerk whose statements late in 1945 touched off Canada's spy investigation.

Up to now neither Justice Department officials nor those of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police would comment on reports that Fuchs was trapped through a Soviet agent's notebook unearthed by Canadian counter-espionage men.

Reliable sources in Ottawa have said that Fuchs' name was found in some document that RCMP men dug up in connection with the 1946 probe. The document was said to be among a large amount of material never made public in the widely publicized Canadian spy trials.

One version of the Canadian link to the Fuchs investigation is that the German-born scientist's name on a staff list rang a bell with a man who had seen the evidence in connection with the Canadian cases. Another version is that the finding of Fuchs' name in the notebook touched off the whole investigation.

total bail of $40,000—$20,000 pending appeal or her Washington conviction for stealing Government documents and $20,000 during her New York trial. Twenty-eight, she is under sentence in Washington of 40 months to 10 years imprisonment, not to run concurrent with the local 15-year sentence.

Gubitchev, Soviet engineer suspended from his United Nations post, had been out in $100,000 bail during trial. It had been posted by Lev S. Tolokonnikov, first secretary of the Soviet Embassy.

Senator Wherry, attacking Acheson, said the Soviet "propaganda machine already has begun to call the action of the United States in the Gubitchev case a sign of weakness and recognition that Russia was right all the time." Russia claimed that Gubitchev had diplomatic immunty and that he was innocent.

He noted that no suspension was recommended for Miss Coplon, and asked, "by what authority does Mr. Acheson say who shall go to jail and who shall go free; in the United States all men are equal before the law—and that applies to Mr. Acheson, too." At Lake Success today, Trygve Lie, secretary general of the U. N., said that Gubitchev is still on the U. N. payroll at $125 a week. He said the engineer's status remains unchanged pending Gubitchev's formal decision as to whether he will return to the Kremlin. Lie refused comment on the jury's verdict or Judge Ryan's sentence.

FBI Transfers Key Coplon Trial Witness to D. C.

By The Associated Press

H. B. Fletcher, inspector in charge of the security division of the Federal Bureau of Investigation for the entire United States, has been transferred to agent in charge of the Washington field office, it was learned last night.

Fletcher, a key witness in the Coplon-Gubitchev espionage trial, has been succeeded by Alan H. Belmont, who has been assistant agent in charge of the New York City field office and assigned to security matters. William Whelan, who had been assigned to criminal matters in New York, succeeds Belmont.

No demotion and no reduction in pay attaches to Fletcher's transfer, an official of the FBI said. Nor does the transfer have any connection with Fletcher's testimony in the Coplon trial that he was responsible for an order to destroy all recordings of wire taps and memoranda concerning wire taps in the case, it was said.

"This is merely a routine administrative transfer, and not a demotion," a bureau official said. "Mr. Fletcher is held in very high esteem in the bureau."

Public Health Team Sent to Iran by U. S.

The United States Public Health Service announced yesterday that it has sent a team to Iran to assist that nation in developing a public health service.

Dr. Emil E. Palmquist, public health director for the City of Seattle and King County, Washington, is in charge of the team. Accompanying him are Frederick F. Aldridge, Seattle sanitary engineer, and Esther M. Finley, Charleston, W. Va., who has been director of nursing service in the Charleston Health Department.

State Dept., Loyalty Board Defended, Praised by Peurifoy

Deputy Undersecretary of State John E. Peurifoy sprang yesterday to the defense of the State Department's nine-member loyalty board with Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) has branded "stupid and incompetent."

Peurifoy said in a statement he is "shocked" that McCarthy should hurl such abuse at a group of men whose records demonstrate their "unimpeachable character and high standing."

Meantime, McCarthy announced that he will base his claim that the State Department is riddled with Communists on a few "thoroughly documented" cases.

He said he will not try to present "complete details" on all 81 cases of alleged disloyalty which he cited in a Senate speech last month. But he promsed to give "all the names" to a Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee investigating his charges.

The subcommittee's hearings are in recess until Monday, when McCarthy is scheduled to complete presentation of his charges.

So far, McCarthy has named only one person—former Judge Dorothy Kenyon of New York—and she is not a State Department employe. She once was a United States representative to the United Nations Commission on the Status of Women, but has been in private law practice since last January 1.

Miss Kenyon has vigorously denied McCarthy's assertion that she belonged to 28 Communist-front groups, and is scheduled to appear in person before the subcommittee Tuesday.

McCarthy told the subcommittee Thursday that the State Department loyalty board cleared Miss Kenyon without even questioning her, despite an FBI report disclosing her "long record of Communist ties."

He said this proves the loyalty board is "stupid and incompetent—at the mildest."

Peurifoy took full responsibility for the membership of the board, and said each individual was "picked by me personally."

"I picked them not only on the basis of their unimpeachable character and high standing, both inside and outside the Department," he said, "but also because they are good, sound citizens from the standpoint of their thinking, judgment and levelheadedness."

Peurifoy said he does not believe that "anybody need do more than look at the records" of the board examiners "to satisfy himself as to their competency."

The loyalty board is headed by Brig. Gen. Conrad E. Snow, ret., of Haverhill, N. H., assistant legal adviser of the Department.

Members include:

Theodore C. Achilles, director of the Department's Division of Western European Affairs; Willard F. Barber, Deputy Assistant Secretary of State; John Oscar Bell, a high official of the military aid-to-Europe program; George H. Raynor, former United States Steel Corp. executive, and adviser to the American U. N. delegation; David A. Robertson, former naval officer and now military adviser to the Near Eastern Division of the Department; John W. Sipes, former naval officer and legislative assistant in the Department; William P. Snow, veteran Foreign Service officer and assistant chief of the Northern Division, and Arthur G. Stevens, executive director of the Office for European Affairs.

Dockers Join French Strike

Paris, March 10 (AP).—Communist-led dockers at Marseille and Bordeaux joined utility, transportation and other workers in the French strike wave today.

Strikers clashed with police in Bordeaux. A few were injured on both sides and some arrests were made before the strikers were dispersed. Eight ships are immobilized there.

The Communist daily, L'Humanite, said there are more than 700,000 strikers. A Labor Ministry spokesman called the figure exaggerated, but offered no estimate of his own.

East-West Fuss

Rival Gangs Of Berlin Youths Clash

Berlin, March 10 (NYHT).—East and West German youths clashed on the American-Soviet sector boundary today when Gerhart Eisler, East German propaganda chief, predicted at a rally that Communist-led police and youth "will conquer Berlin" during the Whitsun holiday at the end of May.

Fists flew and bricks were thrown during the 30-minute demonstration. Both East and West German police intervened to quell the outbreak. No serious injuries were reported.

The rioting began when East German youths attempted to storm a West German sound truck. The truck blew its horn through loud speakers beamed toward Eisler while he was speaking.

East German youths, attempting to storm the truck, were stopped by West German boys who held the line until the truck had withdrawn safely. A policeman fired a warning shot into the air, but nothing more.

Undeterred, Eisler exhorted his listeners to back the march on Berlin. He indicated the 500,000 members of the "Free German Youths" would defy the commandants of the United States, Britain and France, who had barred the marchers from the western sectors.

Earlier, the "Free German Youths" issued a statement defying the West German police and western forces.

New Churchill Move Forces 3d Confidence Test on Attlee

London, March 10 (NYTH).—Winston Churchill, intent on maintaining pressure on the Labor Government, put down another motion today that will be treated by the Government as a question of confidence.

This motion, an attack on Sir Stafford Cripps, "deplores the failure of the Chancellor of the Exchequer to enforce his own instructions to departments not to overspend so extensively their estimates for the current year."

The motion followed announcement of the government's deficiency appropriations totaling $4,144,000,000, of which $274,400,000 goes to the Ministry of Health to meet extra cost for 1949-50 of the national health service.

But the Conservatives have prudently slanted their attack against Sir Stafford rather than against the added cost of the health service, extremely popular with the voters.

This move by Churchill, coming a few hours after last night's vital vote on iron and steel nationalization, means that in four sitting days, the Commons will have dealt with three major divisions.

On Monday, a Conservative amendment to the King's address will come up for a vote. The amendment attacks Labor's housing program. Tuesday, the House will act on Churchill's new motion.

Fund to Fight Trade Barriers Earmarked

By the United Press

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted yesterday to earmark 600 million dollars of Marshall Plan funds to break down trade barriers between western European nations.

The action was taken as the committee considered President Truman's request to authorize $2,950,000,000 for a third year of the European recovery aid program.

An amendment by Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Ia.) to cut the authorization by 600 million dollars was discussed but no action was taken.

The vote to earmark part of the money was the first time a Congressional committee has taken a formal move to speed up economic integration in Europe by giving specific aid for the purpose.

It would authorize the Economic Cooperation Administration to make allotments directly to European trade organizations or to countries participating in such movements.

ECA Administrator Paul G. Hoffman has said that most of the 600 million dollars will be used to back an international monetary clearing house intended to stimulate trade by making money and credit exchanges easier.

He said the money will offer increased incentives to Marshall Plan nations—particularly Britain—to crack trade barriers.

Committee Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.), revealed that he intends to sponsor another amendment aimed at British trade practices. It would prevent "discrimination" against American oil interests.

The British have announced they intend to eliminate, if possible, any oil purchases that require the spending of scarce dollars and divert the trade to sterling areas. Some Texas oil producers have objected to such an embargo on their foreign market.

Arlington Youth Hurt Second Time On Motorcycle

A 19-year-old youth was in Arlington Hospital with possible head injuries yesterday after a motorcycle accident about 11:30 p. m. Thursday.

The youth, David Allen Anstine, of 1720 N. Edgewood st., Arlington, was traveling east on Johnson st. when he accidentally hit his brakes, went into a spin, and was thrown to the pavement, police said.

Anstine was slightly injured last May when his motorcycle collided with an automobile at S. Glebe rd. and Fairfax dr.

Friends Offer Ways To Eliminate War

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

Suggested steps for the elimination of war and achievement of "a true world community" are embraced in the statement of legislative policy released this week by the Friends committee on national legislation.

The committee, composed of about 120 persons, is representative of Friends from many parts of the country and of many different persuasions.

Because of the democratic organization of the Society of Friends, the statement is not an official one of the church group, but it represents the general stand of many Friends on national issues.

The statement asserts the committee believes "the present trend toward a divided world can be reversed by prompt and wise action. War is not inevitable. Peace can be achieved."

"What is needed is the extension of world-wide law and government rather than military nationalism, and a larger measure of faith in God and in mankind—in the supremacy of reason over force and the power of love over fear."

In the international realm, the committee urges that the United States give "full political, financial and moral support" to the United Nations, and calls for "fullest possible use of the United Nations for economic, social and political cooperation among nations."

The United Nations, the Friends legislative group says, should be developed toward "a genuine world government of limited powers, acting under law enforceable on individuals."

"One of the ways in which the United States could greatly aid this development is by clearly indicating its readiness to accept restriction of national sovereignty over armaments, in favor of international authority, in order to aid the achievement of rapid and universal reduction of national armaments to police levels," the statement declares.

American relations with Soviet Russia "need to be treated as a problem to be solved rather than a combat to be won or lost," the report declares.

While the report condemns the ruthlessness and totalitarianism of the Soviet, it repudiates "the fatalistic pessimism which would supinely let the fate of the United States depend on Russian initiative" in improving relations between the two nations.

The Society of Friends is one of the historic peace churches. In the committee report, particular stress is placed on the need for disarmament and control of atomic energy.

"Universal disarmament," the report says, "is one of the basic essentials for a durable peace, as well as for the development of a stable world economy." It calls for "prophetic leadership by the United States in all-out effort for universal disarmament."

It suggests a "standstill" agreement with the Soviet Union to seek a halt to production of atomic bombs, placement of present bombs under U. N. supervision pending their destruction, and initiation of a system of inspecton.

Control of the atomic bomb by the U. N. should not imply its possible use as a "police weapon," but the prohibition of its use, the statement continues.

"The goal should be the complete outlawry of the atomic bomb and weapons of mass destruction, and the utilization of atomic energy for peaceful and creative purposes," it declares.

Bishops' Fund Drive Enlists D. C. Catholics

Roman Catholics in the archdiocese of Washington, next week will join in the annual drive for the Bishops' Fund for the Victims of War.

The drive, which will conclude with collections in all Catholic churches on March 19, Laetare Sunday, has as its goal collection of five million dollars.

In Catholic schools, collections for the fund began on Ash Wednesday, following a radio appeal from Pope Pius XII.

Director of the drive in Washington is the Rev. E. Jerome Winter, pastor of the Shrine of the Sacred Heart, who has supervised collections for many years.

Funds raised will be used to carry out the programs of two joint agencies of the American Catholic bishops—the Bishops' Emergency Relief Committee and War Relief Services—National Catholic Welfare Conference.

During the past seven years, food, clothing and medical supplies valued at more than one million dollars have been distributed to war victims in Europe and Asia as a result of the annual collections.

This year's collections will be used for a two-part program of rehabilitation of refugees and exiles and relief supplies to the needy.

Churches Will Join In 'One Great Hour'

The plight of the world's homeless peoples will be stressed in many Washington churches Sunday as they join in the Nation-wide "One Great Hour of Sharing."

"One Great Hour," a united appeal for funds for world relief and reconstruction, will be marked at 11 a. m. in thousands of Protestant and Eastern Orthodox churches.

Nineteen denominations are cooperating in the project, which is sponsored by the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, the Foreign Missions Conference of North America, the United Council of Church Women, the United Christian Youth Movement, The United Stewardship Council, United Church Canvass and U. S. A. member churches of the World Council of Churches.

Coordinating Campaign

Church World Service, interdenominational relief agency, is coordinating the campaign for funds.

No official goal for the drive has been set, since it is being carried on by each denomination separately, and denominations will make all allocations.

Church World Service alone has a 1950 budget of $4,720,600. Most of the participating churches, while supporting the agency, also have special goals of their own for the day.

Methodists, Lutherans, Northern Baptists, Northern Presbyterians, Disciples, Congregationalists, members of the Evangelical and Reformed church, and Disciples of Christ all have been carrying on campaigns for funds which will come to a climax on Sunday.

Episcopalian Broadcast

The day will have particular significance for Episcopalians.

More than 30,000 Episcopalians in the diocese of Washington, which includes the District of Columbia and Southern Maryland, will be part of a Nation-wide radio audience which will hear an appeal from the Right Rev. Henry Knox Sherrill, presiding bishop.

Carried in Washington over station WTOP, the talk will be broadcast at 11:15 a. m. and heard at morning services in all Episcopal churches.

The address will conclude an intensive three-month campaign carried on by the Episcopal Church to inform its members of the need for an expanded program. A budget of five and one half million dollars, nearly two million more than was asked last year, was adopted by the church to carry out the plan.

Diocese Goal $145,000

Goal for the Washington diocese is $145,000, of which $102,000 was raised or pledged during the annual Every Member Canvass during the fall.

During the past two months 22 Episcopal laymen have visited 62 parishes in the diocese to tell them of the church's needs.

At John Wesley A. M. E. Zion Church, 14th and Corcoran sts. nw., a special service has been planned for 4 p. m. in observance of the unified program of sharing.

Speakers will be Mrs. Beatrice Price Russell of Southport, Conn.; Mrs. Abbie Clement Jackson of Louisville, Ky., and Mrs. Frederick E. Reissig, wife of the executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches.

Chevy Chase Churches To Join in Lenten Rite

Churches in the Chevy Chase area will join in a Lenten service at 8 p. m. Wednesday at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Connecticut ave. and Everett st. nw.

The Rev. Dr. George Arthur Clarke, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, Towson, Md., will be the speaker.

Library Worker to Talk On Fight for Home Rule

Dr. George Galloway of the Legislative Reference Service of the Library of Congress will speak on "The Fight for Home Rule" at 6:30 p. m. Monday at John Wesley A. M. E. Zion Church, 1615 14th st. nw.

Dr. Galloway was formerly staff director of the special House Committee on Home Rule. The interracial, interfaith dinner is sponsored by the Washington Fellowship.

District Catholics To Mark Religious Vocation Week

Religious Vocation Week will be observed in the Catholic archdiocese of Washington beginning Sunday and continuing through March 19.

Young men and women interested in entering the priesthood or orders of brothers and sisters have been invited to a service at 4 p.m. Sunday at St. Matthew's Cathedral, 1727 Rhode Island ave. nw.

The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, archbishop of Washington, will speak on religious vocations at the service.

Arrangements for the week's observance are in charge of the Rev. Philip M. Hannan, director of the religious vocation program for the archdiocese, and the Rev. Louis F. Miltenberger of St. Martin's Church.

In recent months, talks on vocations have been given at all colleges and high schools in the archdiocese.

To Talk at Luncheon

Speaker at the Lenten luncheon Wednesday at 12:30 p. m. at the central Y. M. C. A. will be the Rev. J. A. Leatherman, pastor of Hamline Methodist Church, 16th and Allison sts. nw.

Students to Open Adventist Fund 'Ingathering'

A drive for funds to carry out the humanitarian program of the Seventh-day Adventists will be launched today by students of the Washington Missionary College, Takoma Park, Md.

The 700 students will be divided into 20 bands to cover the District of Columbia to raise the goal of $8000 in seven days.

Funds from the annual drive, known as an "ingathering," will help support medical institutions, colleges and schools of the denomination.

Yesterday Elder Thomas L. Oswald, associate secretary of the home missionary department of the denomination, spoke at a student assembly opening the drive. Tuesday, March 14, will be a "field day" when classes will be dismissed while students visit businesses and residences to raise the money.

Daylight Saving Again

This is the time of year when Congress begins its annual brawl over daylight saving time for the District of Columbia. We hope, of course, that the authorization will slide through easily as the insignificant local question it is; but if past experience is any guide, some legislator ca be relied upon to protest vehemently if irrelevantly that his favorite radio program will be interfered with in Keokuk or that the cows in upstate New York do not take kindly to the time advance. Sometimes we suspect that the House enjoys the pastime, for it is an opportunity to orate profusely for the ears of constituents at no expense except that of the voteless wards of Washington. At any rate, each year the House has spiked the move to give the District Commissioners permanent authority to proclaim daylight saving here, and this time the single House bill is a mere one-year proposition. We hope someone is keeping a record of the aggregate time spent on this and other District matters properly the job of a city council. The contrast, when harassed legislators plead insufficient time for important national affairs, ought to win some converts to the home rule petition.

Loyalty In California

The fact that 900 members of the faculty of the University of California have voted unanimously to reject the non-Communist oath imposed by the university regents indicates that something is drastically wrong with the oath. The question is not, and never has been, any sympathy for communism; the professors' stand against Communists on the faculty and their willingness to take the oath of allegiance required of State and Federal employes attest to that. The issue is simply whether, in their sweeping sign-or-else edict, the regents are not taking a long step toward the kind of political regimentation they supposedly fear.

If the oath would catch any Communists, there might be something to be said for it. But, patently, it would not; any Communist intent on worming his way into a university faculty would not hesitate to falsify an oath. At the same time there are a number of extremely harmful effects in the pledge. Faculty members, understandably concerned with freedom of inquiry and thought, regard the non-Communist oath both as a gratuitous slur and a redundancy in view of the broader oath they have agreed to sign. They view the requirement as essentially a political criterion of faculty tenure which aims at making robots out of teachers. This tendency in our American life is being watched in Europe with growing concern; more and more writers are telling their fellow countrymen that the United States, no less than the Soviet Union, is trying to standardize the individual. A further evil of the oath is to be found in the probability that anyone who refused to sign the oath on principle, even though he abhorred Communist teachings, would make the university the target for all sorts of "Red" charges.

The real danger in this kind of thing is the precedent it sets for even more repressive inquiries which can permeate to every crossroads and which have no bearing whatsoever on security—witness the insupportable oath and FBI certification which may be required of students even in totally nonsecret work under the National Science Foundation. The inviolability of political belief, including unorthodox belief, is one of the most basic values in American society, and a great many perfectly loyal persons object strenuously and properly to any encroachment upon it. California faculty members deserve applause for resisting what amounts to an assault on their liberties in the perfidious guise of an effort to protect those liberties.

Dr. Sander's Acquittal

Probably 9 persons out of 10 could have predicted the outcome of the murder trial of Dr. Hermann Sander in New Hampshire. It is doubtful whether Dr. Sander could have been convicted even if the State had proved that he performed a mercy killing on a patient near the point of death from cancer. As the case developed, however, the jury had a much less difficult problem to deal with. Apparently it accepted the doctor's testimony, which was corroborated by other evidence, that his patient had died before he injected air into her veins. Dr. Sander established no reasonable motive for what he did, but American justice does not permit the magnification of a foolish but apparently harmless act into the crime of murder.

As it turned out, the case got far more publicity than it deserved. Perhaps the only purpose its prosecution may have served is to warn doctors that they are not at liberty to decide on their own responsibility when suffering has reached a point at which the life of the individual should be terminated. Before such acts could be tolerated the least that would be necessary would be the enactment of a law creating medical committees to pass upon each case and then only upon petition of the victim and close relatives and approval of the courts.

Total Diplomacy

Secretary Acheson elaborated for the benefit of the Advertising Council the other day his view of foreign policy as a process of obtaining working agreements with the Soviet Union by increasing the area of non-Communist strength. This is impeccable doctrine. It should be clear to everybody at this disillusioning stage in relations with the Soviet Union that that country will stop its aggression and its noncooperation only when confronted with an immovable object. There is a reminder of an amoeba in Soviet tactics. The amoeba flows on and on till it encounters something indigestible, then seeks to flow around it. Moscow's most serious setback has been Tito's defection, and this has imposed upon the Muscovites the necessity of pursuing a policy of consolidation along with that of aggression. Consolidation requires that they rid their tributary states of American representatives, and they have succeeded in doing so in the case of Bulgaria, as well as in that of China. It is felt in Lake Success, indeed, that the Russians, whose boycott of the United Nations is now almost complete, may be preparing to set up their own United Nations.

Any attempt to stop this division in the world through an appeal to Stalin would be worse than useless, and would, in fact, be dangerous. This should be obvious after a moment's thought. It should be equally obvious that some of the proponents of a parley with Stalin are not only fully aware of that danger but seek to court it. For they are advocates of a preventive war. And the best way to create opinion favorable to preventive war is to get people thinking of a conference in terms of a showdown. This is not to say that the door should not always be kept open to Russia, or that the United States must not always be reexamining, reaffirming and explaining its program for peace. That is the only way to develop the "total diplomacy" for which Mr. Acheson pleads. By "total diplomacy" he means "all branches of the Government working closely together, with all agencies of the executive branch playing their parts, and with all groups of the American people agreeing to cooperate to the utmost." The aim is justified by all the exigencies of the times, but it can only be achieved by a constant reassessment and restatement of the American position. It is in this respect that, in our opinion, the Administration has hitherto been lax.

The Administration's accent, moreover, is too much on containment by force. This is a negative and a physical note, thought of, perhaps, as justified by the fear that the hand of the preventive war advocate may be back of some of the support for grand gestures. Happily a change in this respect may be seen in Mr. Acheson's present speech. A week or so ago he was throwing cold water on the general feeling that the people of continental Europe are back of a sacrifice of national sovereignty in favor of federation. He followed this up with a blanket frown on all the resolutions before Congress in favor of a tighter organization of the free world. Now, however, he expresses confidence that "unity and determination among the free nations will ultimately lead to working agreements with the Russians." The emphasis on nonmilitary strength is heartening. Unity will never come, however, by waiting for it, but only by leadership. What the free world is badly in need of at the present time is another Edmund Burke who will expound what Burke called "the grand vicinage" of the free world. Only along this route lies true security for the United States—and peace.

British Caretaking

It is now quite clear that no working agreement has been established between or among the parties in Britain as a counterweight to the precarious parliamentary balance. The Tories started their attack on the very heels of the speech from the throne. On the issue—postponement of the nationalization of the iron and steel industry—the Laborites won, though that would have been made possible, anyway, by the Conservatives. The Conservatives wanted to register their position, not to test the government; for it would have been folly to force another general election so soon after the last. In that event the British would have had no patience with the party which exhibited such a reckless disregard for the nation's time and money. However, the Laborites look as if they will be harried from now on till the day of dissolution.

Mr. Churchill appears to envisage a steady deterioration of the economic affairs of Britain to the stage of a demonstrable crisis. He is not above doing his bit to foment it, as, witness, his comment the other day that a new devaluation of the pound is in prospect. It is because of this view, perhaps, that he, no less than the Labor Party, is cold to any suggestion of a coalition government, for he does not want to share responsibility for what he believes is the inevitable crisis. His tactic seemingly is either to force another election or dictate the terms of a coalition when the crisis has seized the country.

Thus Britain has joined those of our allies who have more or less caretaker governments. From the standpoint of progress toward the unity of the Atlantic allies, this is a bleak outlook, foreshadowing as it does that in England world affairs will be increasingly subordinated to party affairs.

Military Atoms

If the principle of civilian control of atomic energy was important when the Atomic Energy Commission was created in 1946, it is no less important today. What has changed to make Senator Tydings and Representative Kilday believe that the mandatory inclusion of one military officer and the permissive inclusion of another on the five-man commission is now essential? The AEC has acquitted itself of the unfounded charges of mismanagement brought by Senator Hickenlooper. The Fuchs affair, or at least the part of it relating to this country, happened while the Army was still in control of atomic energy. And the "armed services viewpoint," which Messrs. Tydings and Kilday want expressed, already is adequately represented in the military liaison committee, which has the power of appeal to the President in case of disagreement.

The objection on grounds of principle to the inclusion of military men on the commission is deep founded. Civilian direction of policy is a cornerstone of the American system. The armed forces are agents, not formulators, of policy. To breach this principle with military men as policy makers would be to inject a note of militarism which most responsible defense leaders have shunned. Nor is there any reason to believe that cooperation with the military now is anything less than adequate. As a compromise measure when the McMahon Act was adopted, military officers were placed in charge of the commission's division of military application. If military officers were to be included on the top commission itself, military influence would be stronger than under the discarded May-Johnson bill.

Aside from the complete lack of need for such a move, there is another coldly practical reason why it would be bad. Military strategy is the job of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Yet military men on the commission inevitably would be under the temptation to play at strategy, to second-guess the JCS. A rivalry and a dual allegiance would thus be set up. The effect might well be to increase the futile demand for secrecy and to place even less emphasis than the commission has placed so far on the nonmilitary atomic development which is true peace potential of atomic energy.

President Truman properly has decried the Tydings-Kilday bill. If he wishes to give the most effective answer to this diversion, however, it behooves him to act quickly in filling the two commission vacancies, including the chairmanship. He cannot afford to let the Atomic Energy Commission drift as he has the National Security Resources Board.

French Made Easy

Maybe you saw the picture in the paper the other day of the beautiful young lady who was taking her French lesson while sound asleep in the show window on Connecticut ave. nw., all oblivious of the interested and admiring crowd gathered on the other side of the glass. It was a demonstration of a new and relatively painless method of learning difficult and hitherto disagreeable subjects by hypnosis.

Unfortunately, we did not have the opportunity of observing the demonstration, but from the picture and from supplementary information, we gather that there was on the pillow beside the head of the pupil an earphone attached to a tape recorder on which the lesson of the day was inscribed. Thus out of the earphone, as we surmise, came soft, incessant insinuating questions about the doings of relatives and the whereabouts of hats, coats, notebooks, pencils, pens and so on, which presumably the young lady answered correctly and in tranquil silence. Let us hope that for the sake of both convenience and congruity the lesson also included the familiar little poem with the lines

Je n'ai pas de plume,
Je suis dans mon lit.

The general principle seems to be that the old-fashioned method of attempting to learn certain subjects by conscious concentration—or, as the saying went, by putting a mind to it—more or less defeated its own purpose by building up a kind of tension. The subconscious mind, it seems, is at once more hospitable and receptive and works on a 24-hour shift and does its best work when the conscious isn't there to bother it. However, the best results from this hypnotic pedagogy appear to utilize both the conscious and the unconscious faculties, as when the phonograph or the tape recorder lessons are also played to the pupil not only while he sleeps but also while he is getting up from sleep and while he is getting ready for bed.

We are told that this sleep-learning method is good only for subjects that can be mastered merely by the cooperation of the ear and the memory—such as languages, multiplication tables, rhymes containing the number of days in the respective months, and prose or verse passages that have to be committed for future recitation. It is of no help, it seems, in figuring out why the sides of an isosceles triangle are equal to each other or whether the thing-in-itself is mind or matter, or how to play the fifth at Charles Town tomorrow. The conscious mind, it seems, still has the monopoly of all mental operations that require the use of what is called reasoning—and this, we dare say, is just as well.

As far as we are aware, no means has been discovered of reversing the technique, that is of using the device to rid the mind of unwanted knowledge. That, too, if we can trust these psychoanalytic fellows, is something that can happen only when one is wide awake.

"Relief For Strikers"

Your March 9 editorial, "Relief for Strikers," contained the sentence: "If it (The United Mine Workers of America) was wealthy enough to give the Steelworkers Union half a million dollars and now, to offer a million dollars loan of the United Automobile Workers, certainly it should have been able to keep some of its own membership off the relief rolls during its own strike."

The sentence, of course, is in error. The half-a-million dollar gift was made by the United Steelworkers, CIO, to the United Mine Workers, not vice versa. The Mine Workers Union subsequently returned the check for the half a million dollars with the comment that "conditions did not permit the usage of this money."

Rubles In China

There is an element connected with the announcement of the new relationship between the Russian ruble and gold which seems to have been overlooked in the ensuing discussion. It is the element of timing.

In December, 1947, there was every indication that the Soviet currency reform was a preparatory measure for a step like the one now taken. It did seem to many observers that it was in the mind of the Russian policy makers to put the ruble on a limited gold standard and then strive for the establishment of a trading area in parts of Europe outside the Iron Curtain where the Russian monetary unit could meet the dollar on a footing of equality and sterling on a basis of superiority. As the world's second largest producer of gold with, presumably, the greatest accumulated hoard of gold anywhere outside of the United States, Russia would have been in a position to give such a currency effective strength in international markets.

The intensification of the cold war since the currency reform of 1947 is probably the reason why the follow-through was delayed for more than two years. Political containment of Russia had been followed by economic containment; the potential basis for the trading area had disappeared. Her international trade had sunk to a level where, what had been conceived as a dramatic act of real economic significance, would have been reduced to an ineffective gesture.

Now, however, it should be noted that the announcement followed promptly upon the communization of China and the formalization of Russia's position there in the treaty with the Peiping government. Russia has now open to her a vast international trading area in the Far East and we may anticipate moves to supplant there the United States dollar and the Hongkong dollar as a means of trading.

Christ Church

Who is there to defend the symbols of our national culture? Where are these citizens, these civic organizations, while the congregation of Christ Church in Alexandria votes to erect a parish hall on this historic plot? I am not a specialist in history. I am not an antique-worshiper and I am familiar with the idea that the multiplication of shrines indicates decadence. However, as a private citizen, I wish to protest. The spaciousness surrounding Christ Church allows it to be seen well from the Washington st. route to Mount Vernon. The addition of another building, with a 60-foot. frontage, will crowd this setting and dwarf the importance of the church.

"Nonsegregated Travel"

In your March 3 editorial favoring nonsegregated travel in Virginia, you concede that public attitudes cannot be legislated. But to compensate, for this faint glimmer of light touching your editorial policy, you immediately follow with the blantantly irrational assumption that segregation is an "artificial barrier."

Segregation is not some curse which Satan himself made special trip to earth to inspire. And, although influenced thereby, it is not primarily a matter of tradition. Rather, it is the consensus of majority opinion arising through millions of contacts between the two races day after day in Virginia.

Every Negro may possess the brain of Einstein, the physique of Atlas, and a soul which puts to shame mere minor saints. But even so, his fundamental outlook is basically divergent, upon the points of finer sensibilities which the Southern white holds above all else. The issue is not comparative qualities, but antagonistic senses of value.

"Skirting Defense"

Your March 3 editorial, "Skirting Defense" exhibits profound misinformation as to the status of the Marine Corps, and as to the modus operandi of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Because of that misinformation, you abruptly dismiss as "utterly unworkable" the House Armed Services Committee's recent commitment to place the Commandant of the Marine Corps on the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Indeed the Marine Corps is "a coequal service."

Not in size, perhaps, but definitely so in other respects, and particularly so in respect to law. The courts have repeatedly maintained (with occasional assists from Congress) (1) that the Marine Corps is sui generis; (2) that the Marine Corps is unlike the Army or the Navy; (3) that the Marine Corps is maintained "in addition to" (not part of, you note) the other services, for specific purposes. And quite recently, in summing up legal aspects of this question, Admiral Colclough, Navy Judge Advocate General, testified before the Senate, "The Marine Corps has been held for years to be a separate service, although it operates with the Navy and under the Secretary of the Navy."

In describing the Commandant of the Marine Corps as "a Marine officer responsible to the Chief of Naval Operations," you departed even farther from the facts. The truth is, ever since the founding of the Navy Department, the Commandant of the Marine Corps has taken his orders directly from, and been directly responsible to the Secretary of the Navy.

What remains of your thesis? Only the contention that the addition of the Commandant of the Marine Corps to the Joint Chiefs of Staff ". . . would provide an additional Navy vote on the Joint Chiefs of Staff and thus permit one service to frustrate the other two."

DP Expellees

Something must be done about the 12 million expellees who now find themselves homeless in Germany. They were expelled from the areas east of Germany and from Polish-administered Germany, because they are Germans or were of German ancestry.

The Washington Post has generally been reasonable in its attitude toward Germany. In view of this generally constructive attitude, it is surprising to see the exclusionist policy, which The Washington Post has enunciated in the last few weeks with regard to the expellees.

We feel that Germans should have equal immigration rights with persons of other nationalities in coming to the United States. History proclaims the error we made in singling out the people of Asia in the infamous Oriental Exclusion Act and barring them from the United States.

All stereotypes and Herblock cartoons to one side, it is a fact that Senator Pat McCarran's displaced persons definition does recognize the importance of giving equal rights to the expellees and of tearing down the barriers against them, which are in the present DP law and in the Celler and Kilgore definitions.

It is our hope that the exclusionist bars will be lowered in the forthcoming DP legislation by incorporating the broad McCarran definition of a displaced person, and that if necessary the total number of immigrants authorized be increased. We have room for all the DPs, as presently defined, who are likely to want to come to the United States.

JAMES FINUCANE.
Associate Secretary, National Council for Prevention of War.

This statement loses most of its force in view of what has already been made clear as to the independent status of the Marine Corps. You might well glance backward, however, to the five-year period (1942-1947) when the Army owned two JCS seats, those of the Army Chief of Staff and the Commanding General, Army Air Forces. Between those two officials there existed the legal bond of superior and subordinate—a bond infinitely stronger than whatever shadowy juncture may exist between the Commandant of the Marine Corps and the Chief of Naval Operations. Today, the Marine Corps, unencumbered by any subordinate relationship with another component of the Armed Forces, holds a viewpoint at least as independent.

But do the Joint Chiefs of Staff—as you premise—actually reach decisions by vote?

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson (who perhaps knows better than The Washington Post) stated officially no later than October 1949:

"In the first place, the Joint Chiefs of Staff do not vote; neither do they decide. Instead, the Joint Chiefs recommend and the Secretary of Defense, as the representative of the Commander in Chief, and where appropriate the Commander in Chief himself, does the deciding. In the second place, the ultimate decision of the Secretary of Defense or the President is not governed by the fact that two of the chiefs may recommend substantially identical courses, while a third chief recommends something quite different. All that such a difference of opinion means is that the issue is one which must be decided by someone other than the Joint Chiefs of Staff."

What Are Taxes Worth?

By Malvina Lindsay

Taxpayer's Inventory

WELL, HERE you are again writing a check to support a lot of loafers and grafters—now, now wait! You sound like old Snortle on the bus . . . always griping about the bunch that's running something — anything. And he works for the Government!

Anyway, you're fed up with taxes, and you're going to grouse all you please. Doesn't everybody? Didn't even our faultless forefathers when they grudgingly paid as much as $2 per capita over a period of eight years to help finance the Revolution and the Continental Congress?

Still, you loathe bellyaching—at least in other persons. Put up or shut up, you think, when you hear the annual March 15 whining. Offer a better system (or a better country) or pay through the nose cheerfully.

Then what about yourself? Are you just vaporously crabbing, or do you know where your tax dollar goes?

Oh, yes! Three fourths to national defense, to pay the costs of past wars . . . to prepare for—or prevent—future ones. You think of all the money going directly for armament—weapons, ships, planes, men in uniform—between 13 and 14 billion out of a 44-billion-dollar budget; of the 12 billion for veterans' programs and for interest on the war debt; four billion to arm and feed foreign allies; 800 million for atomic energy; other millions for "minor" war costs.

WHAT a change in your tax bill if the world were only at peace—or even without a cold war! But there's nothing you can do about that. Or can you?

You think of all the other calls on your tax dollar, flood control and reclamation, highways, education, research, postal deficit, housing, Government administration, farm price supports—

Ah, that's it! The farmer! Living off your tax dollar! . . . Yet . . . if the farmer goes broke and can't buy, what happens to your job? You think of the 1920s when business got the lift and the farmer didn't. You think of 1929!

Anyway there are the bureaucrats. They're what's wrong with your tax dollar! They're what keeped your nose to the grindstone! Those loafers! You looks at the budget. Their cost is around 1200 million. A little over 2½ cents out of your tax dollar.

Still it's the penny saved that counts. Why aren't all these things run at less cost? Then there are these income tax inquities. Why isn't something done about them? Yet what are you doing—except grousing? How much do you know about how your tax dollar's being invested or squandered? Or about who's handling it?

Well, from now on you're going to look into things more. You've as good a right as anybody to do something — nose around, go to tax hearings, call a meeting, circulate a petition, get out a pamphlet, mount a soap box, run for office. That's one thing about this country. Anybody can raise a big fog about anything he doesn't like.

Yes . . . that is one thing about this country. Maybe . . . it's one of the biggest things you buy with your tax check.

YOU'VE never thought of the other side of it—what you get when you pay taxes. You've always thought of yourself as charitably and nobly bestowing a handout on a groveling Uncle Sam. You think of Justice Oliver Wendel Holmes—what he said when he heard his young secretary grumbling about a tax bill. . . . "Young man, I like to pay taxes. They're my investment in civilization."

What are you getting out of your investment? At least a lot more than the first taxpayers, the early serfs who had to give everything, including themselves, to the top boss. And more now than taxpayers in most other countries. Certainly more than taxpayers behind iron curtains.

And now it looks as if you were going to be paying big taxes for a long, long time. Even if you and other righteous citizens were to bring about a Utopia of efficiency and economy in Government there'd still be the cold war world. Still 74 cents out of your dollar on defense.

So . . . maybe it might make things easier in future to have a different attitude toward your taxes. Not to be so pinched in spirit about them. To write your check or open your pocketbook with the grand air of one making an "investment in civilization." To think of the order, opportunity, comfort, civilized living, personal freedom they were buying you. Even to feel they might be buying a little more of these things for people everywhere.

Free World Answer

Senator McMahon, in his magnificent Senate speech, hit the nail on the head when he said: "We must open the mind and heart of the free world, and unify its purpose, before we open the door of the conference room."

Next to the McMahon story in your March 2 issue we read that the State Department and British Foreign Office are considering a meeting of the Atlantic Pact signatories to discuss further economic and political cooperation.

Is freedom's side going to finally get together in a union—now? Is the philosophy of Clarence Streit finally hitting home? VIC REINEMER.

A Communication

Time-Bomb In The Science Foundation

By Clifford Grobstein

Vice Chairman, Federation of American Scientists

IN YOUR editorial of March 3 you refer to the drastic provision for FBI investigation of National Science Foundation employes and fellows contained in the bill passed by the House on March 1. You ask, "Where is this absurdity to stop?" May I suggest that it will not stop so long as democratically minded citizens resign themselves, as you suggest, to the view "that it is better to have the bill with the restriction than not to have it at all."

The Federation of American Scientists has urged the importance of this legislation, as The Washington Post has so splendidly done, but it knows, too, the nature of the time-bomb planted in the legislation by a misguided group in the House. There are at least two good reasons why this legislation, now unfortunately loaded with political dynamite, is not better than none at all.

First, the chances of success of the House proposed NSF are jeopardized at the outset by its violation of a first principle of scientific tradition—freedom from political qualification. Scientists will not "strike" against the legislation. But more and more of them simply will prefer to look elsewhere for their support, or go without it, rather than subject themselves to procedures so unnecessary and repugnant.

Second, the issue raised goes beyond the Science Foundation, indeed almost relegates it to the background. It is not only as scientists, but as citizens concerned for the future of our way of life, that we protest this new height in anti-democratic measures offered to protect democracy.

THE LOYALTY provision of the House version reads as follows: "No person shall be employed by the Foundation and no scholarship shall be awarded to any person by the foundation unless and until the FBI shall have investigated the loyalty of such person and reported to the foundation such person is loyal to the Unted States, believes in our system of Government, and is not and has not at any time been a member of any organization declared subversive by the Attorney General or any organization that teaches or advocates the overthrow of our Government by force and violence."

In light of the fact that this provision is applicable to an agency intended to devote itself primarily to education in the sciences and basic, nonsecret research, it deserves comparison with the provision governing the Atomic Energy Commission, an agency concerned with highly secret research and information: "Except as authorized by the commission in case of emergency, no individual shall be employed by the commission until the Federal Bureau of Investigation shall have made an investigation and report to the commission on the character, associations, and loyalty of such individual."

THE PROPOSED NSF provision is far more drastic than the AEC provision in at least three important respects:

1. Membership in a single organization on the Attorney-General's list, of however short duration, demonstrates disloyalty, regardless of other evidence to the contrary. Evaluation is based not on an individual's total record, but on what may have been a single action.

2. Not only present membership, but past membership demonstrates disloyalty. An individual who has performed a single purportedly disloyal action can never again be regarded as loyal. And, according to the language of the NSF provision, this applies ex post facto—an individual is disloyal even though he resigned from an organization before it appeared on the Attorney General's list.

3. The FBI is given not only investigative responsibility to establish facts, but evaluative responsibility as well. Before any person is employed or awarded a scholarship, the FBI must certify that he is loyal. If this provision is accepted, Congress, for the first time, would have declared that the FBI is more than a fact-gathering agency, that it is responsible for judging, and certifying to, the loyalty of free citizens. Whether or not this is regarded as a proper function of the FBI, the question certainly should not be decided in legislation to establish a Federal science agency. If we wish the FBI to do this, it should be accomplished in legislation specifically designed for the purpose.

HOW FAR this absurdity is to go, to use your apt phrase, depends upon how far we will allow ourselves to be led without more than grumbles and protests for the record. In the opinion of the Federation of American Scientists, loyalty checks of any kind are unnecessary and unwise for scientists not having access to secret information. The foundation is expected to support very little secret research, and we would prefer, in fact, that it support none at all.

What secret work it may do is adequately protected in both House and Senate versions by the provision that the foundation, with the concurrence of the Secretary of Defense, "shall establish regulations and procedures for the security classification of information or property (having military significance) in connection with scientific research under this Act, and for the proper safeguarding of any information or property so classified." Under this provision, if necessary, the FBI could be called on to investigate particular individuals in sensitive positions. There is no reason for a blanket provision applying to the great majority of persons associated with the foundation who will be concerned only with information of completely unrestricted nature.

Under these circumstances the drastic, general loyalty provision is completely inappropriate and must be viewed as a maneuver designed for other purposes. Either the hope is to kill the bill by including a provision completely unacceptable to its supporters, or to use the bill to establish a precedent for later legislation involving Federal support, as for example, to education.

If these tactics are to be beaten, the grave general issue must be recognized and public opinion mobilized to ensure deletion of the provision by the Senate-House conference committee which will be appointed shortly. The Senate version of the legislation, written in more temperate days, contains no unnecessary loyalty provisions. Conference committee members may be expected to exercise more reasoned judgment than did the House, particularly if it is made clear that the House version is totally unacceptable—not only to scientists but to all those who are more concerned with free thought than with safe thought.

Six-Alarmer in Baltimore . . .

FURNITURE STORE BURNS—Firemen battle the six-alarm fire in the Hecht Bros. furniture store in Baltimore yesterday. Two men died in the store as a result of the blaze

Fire Kills Two in Hecht Store In Downtown Baltimore

Baltimore, March 10 (AP).—Two men were found dead today after fire flashed through the five-story Hecht furniture store on one of Baltimore's busiest downtown corners, Howard and Franklin sts.

W. Calvert Hull, credit manager, was found lifeless at his second-floor desk. A doctor said Hull apparently had a heart attack and then died of suffocation.

Charles T. Clark, 41, a painter, was found dead in the basement four hours after the fire. Firemen waded in water up to their waists to find him.

Stock Valued at $250,000

The store is one of 13 sister stores operated by The Hecht Co. in Washington, Silver Spring, Baltimore, New York and Easton, Md.

Store officials said the stock valued at $250,000 was destroyed and extensive damage was done to the building, worth about the same.

Four painters were hurt battling their way out of the building from the fourth floor. Five firemen were treated for minor injuries suffered in an hour's work quenching the flames.

The fire broke out in the basement shortly before 9 o'clock. Eleven of the 60 employes already had arrived and they fled. The store had not yet opened for business.

Slid Down Elevator Cables

Paul Diven, another painter, said he and Clark slid down the cables of a freight elevator from the fourth to the first floor.

"Charlie kicked open the door leading to the first floor and went in shouting 'I'm going to crash through a show window'."

Diven said he went on to the elevator pit and "tried to grope my way through the basement for about 15 minutes but couldn't get out."

"I heard Charlie shouting for me and climbed up the shaft but the screams stopped and I couldn't find him. I went back to the shaft but the screams stopped and I couldn't find him. I went back ot the shaft, climbed on a ledge and started kicking at some boards which barred my way to the outside." He stumbled out to the street and collapsed after telling firemen "there's a man inside."

Boothe Bill Rejected by State Senate

Richmond, Va., March 10 (Spl.). The Virginia Senate today refused by a vote of 18-10 to restore to the Alexandria city charter a requirement for nonpartisan councilmanic elections.

The bill, introduced in the House by Delegate Armistead L. Boothe, of Alexandria, now goes back to the lower chamber for concurrence in several Senate committee amendments. One of them deleted the nonpartisan election clause.

Boothe promised to renew the fight in the House and demand a conference committee. He said tonight that Senator Andrew W. Clarke, of Alexandria, agreed there is still a chance for its survival.

Councilmen Pledge Fight

Members of the Alexandria City Council on both sides of the issue are "vehemently opposed" to the Senate's action, Booth said.

"We will fight it to the bitter end," he said.

An urgent plea by Clarke that the key provision be reinstated went for naught before the Senate.

He said nonpartisan elections were contrary to his personal feelings and his ideas of "principles of democratic government."

"But I can't stand here and let the wishes of the people who have spoken be denied without saying a word."

Referendum for It

Clark recalled that the voters of Alexandria had approved the nonpartisan election plan in a referendum last year.

"Let my people have what they want," he declared.

Senator Mosby G. Perrow of Lynchburg, chairman of the Senate committee that struck the provision from the Boothe charter bill, stuck by that action in reply to Clarke.

He said the amendment merely left the charter "silent" on how elections should be held whether by primaries or petition.

To reject the amendment and reinstate a specific requirement for nonpartisan elections, Mosby added, would be "to destroy the Democratic Party, to which so many of us owe allegiance."

Quotes Alexandria Wires

"I will never sit here to vote to ban the Democratic Party," he said.

Mosby then quoted from telegrams received from Alexandria. One was from L. B. Mayer, an Independent unsuccessful candidate for the Alexandria council, who supported the Clarke proposal. Another was from Bernard Fagleson, chairman of the city Democratic committee, asking that the amendment be retained.

After heated debate, the Senate voted 24-7 to accept all committee amendments. It had considered the election provision separately. Then Clarke moved to dispense with constitutional readings of the bill, and it passed as amended, 30-1. The single "no" was cast by Clarke.

Other amendments define the city's right of eminent domain as compared with that of corporations and delete a clause giving the city planning jurisdiction over a three-mile radius outside the city limits.

Votes Recorded

This is how the Senate voted on Clarke's motion to reject the committee amendment deleting the non-partisan election requirement:

Ayes—Baldin, Breeden, Clark, Crowder, Gardner, Landreth, Noris, Palmer, Robinette and Stuart.

Noes—Blanton, Burton, H. F. Byrd, jr., Carpenter, Caudill, Fenwick, Fitzpatrick, Guest, Gunter, Hagood, Harrison, Long, McCue, Minter, Moses, Perrow, Vaden and Wailes.

Not Voting—Senators Button, Carter, Dalton, Goode, Gray, Hillard, Noland, Pitts, Richeson, Stephens and Warren.

Virginia House Sends Battle His School Construction Bill

Richmond, Va., March 10 (AP).—The House of Delegates tonight gave overwhelming approval to the second part of Governor Battle's school construction program.

It approved, 88-3, the Stephens Senate bill to transfer 11 million dollars from the sinking fund to the literary fund, for loans to localities for school construction.

Delegate Robert Whitehead of Nelson charged the Assembly was creating a State debt and undoing the work of the Darden administration. Administration spokesmen described the act as merely a bookkeeping device, carrying out Governor Battle's campaign promises.

Alternate Plan Beaten

The House rejected a Whitehead alternate plan and passed the bill, which now goes to the Governor.

Meanwhile, teacher salary funds in the appropriation bill, tax reduction and poll tax repeal loomed as the chief obstacles to orderly adjournment of the Virginia General Assembly tomorrow.

The Senate and House were at odds over appropriations and tax reduction and the Senate still has to consider a House-approved resolution for repeal of the poll tax.

After lengthy debate the Senate upheld its finance committee in striking from the appropriation bill an extra million dollars for teachers salaries added by the House. The vote was 25-10. The Senate then passed the $602,770,000 bill unanimously.

With the Senate in lengthy session on numerous appropriation bill amendments, the Senate privileges and elections committee postponed action until tomorrow morning on the House's poll tax repealer.

After passage of the Byrd "automatic" tax reduction bill, the House passed the much-amended Gray tax commission bill originally designed to make State income tax exemptions the same as Federal exemptions. However, as amended it leaves the State exemptions at $1000 each for taxpayer and spouse and $200 each for dependents instead of Federal exemptions of $600 per person, including dependents.

The House combed through its calendar to pass numerous uncontested bills, then met for a night session at which another fight was expected over a bill to tighten up the absent voters law under which many election frauds have come to light.

The House passed a Senate bill to provide that penalties, not fines, be imposed by trial justices for exceeding load limits on highways.

Also passed was the Fenwick bill to drop the words "insane," "lunatic," etc., from the legal vocabulary and refer to the "mentally ill" and "mentally deficient" instead. The bill provides that a trial justice shall be the principal committing officer, and not a justice of the peace, where mental illness is alleged.

Other Senate bills passed would: Prohibit convict labor on State highways from receiving more wages than free labor; require school buses to have identification marks covered when buses are not being used to haul school children; remove the requirement that a driver's license be revoked where a person has been discharged from a mental institution within 30 days after admission.

The House passed the Baldwin-Breeden "automobile association" bill. It would forbid the installation of a television set on a vehicle where visible to the driver; put the speed limit at 25 mph in a business district of a large city, except where a traffic study shows a different need; and prohibit a car from towing another car at a speed in excess of 40 mph where the towed car has no driver.

Tax Bill Puts Senate, House at Loggerheads

Richmond, Va., March 10 (AP).—The State's policy of conditional appropriations was warmly debated today as the House passed the Byrd "automatic" income tax reduction bill, but in a form which left the House at loggerheads with the Senate.

The House voted 52 to 46 to limit the bill's effectiveness to two years, but proponents and opponents agreed later that this really limits it to one income tax payment. State taxes for one year are paid in December of the next and the bill will expire before time comes for a second payment.

The Senate quickly rejected the House amendments and the bill will undoubtedly go to conference.

March of Dimes Drive in D. C. Nets $191,392

The District's January March of Dimes drive collected $191,392—$40,000 more than last year—it was announced yesterday.

Drive Chairman Edgar Morris said $25,880 will be given to nearby Virginia and Maryland counties in accordance with requests of contributors in those areas.

Half of the rest, he said, will be spent by the District chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis for equipment and care of victims of poliomyolitis. The remainder will go to the National Foundation, he said.

Barrett Presses Probe of Police Erasures

swered. "I think I would remember if I had made any erasures."

"Did you make any erasures?" he was asked.

"I definitely did not make any erasures," he said. "I definitely did not know about any erasures until I read about it in the papers."

Heflin was asked if he was the man who brought the erasures to Barrett's attention. He declined to comment.

Discovered By Officer

When Maher revealed the erasures on Wednesday, he said a Third Precinct officer discovered them Saturday, March 4. Maher said the officer was listening to a broadcast of committee hearings on that day, heard the patrol system book might be sent for, and "went down to the precinct to be sure the 4 p. m. roll call was on the book before it was taken to the Capitol." It was then he discovered the erasures.

Subsequently, it was learned the book containing the January 31 erasures was completed March 1 and on March 4 had not been used for three days.

Others sources reported Barrett learned of the erasures from more than one person.

The erasures, Barrett says, shed new light on the whereabouts of Capt. Anthony Richitt at 8:40 a. m. on January 31. Richitt precipitated the Police Department controversy when he was angered by a disciplinary transfer from command of the Third to the Eighth Precinct.

Richitt testified that at 8:40 a. m., January 31, he called his precinct from a signal box at 18th and L sts. and was told to contact Barrett immediately. He did, and Barrett then told him the House crime inquiry was concerned over the lack of gambling arrests in the Third and Seventh Precincts, Richitt claims.

Barrett said Wednesday a handwriting expert had discovered an erased entry in the signal book which showed Richitt actually was at 20th and P sts., at 8:40 a. m., January 31, not five blocks away at 18th and L sts. nw.

Claims Perjury Proved

"That proves a whole lot of things," Barrett said Thursday. "It proves some persons perjured themselves and, if they perjured themselves about that, they probably perjured themselves about other things."

Barrett has testified he could not have told Richitt on January 31 about the committee because he did not learn of the matter until February 1.

The one-day difference in dates becomes important in view of Richitt's further testimony concerning his activities on January 31. Shortly after he heard from Barrett, Richitt has testified, Emmitt Warring, reputed kingpin of Washington gamblers, visited the Third Precinct.

Warring said Barrett had just told him the committee was concerned about the lack of gambling arrests in the Third and Seventh Precincts, Richitt testified, adding that Warring referred to Barrett as "the boss."

Beach Made Quick Report

Capt. Beverly C. Beach of the Seventh Precinct has testified that in response to a request from Barrett he made a report on gambling arrests in his precinct. He said he made the report on the afternoon of the morning Barrett asked for it. Beach's report was dated January 31.

Newsdealer Again Missing As Gaming Case Is Called

Louis A. Zampini, 36, charged with setting up a gaming table, yesterday failed to appear for the second time in a week when his case was called in Municipal Court.

Assistant United States Attorney Jerome Powell told Judge Walter Casey evidence against Zampini was being presented directly to the grand jury and the case was continued for two weeks.

Zampini has been free on $500 bond since his newsstand at 1624 L st. nw, was raided last February by Capt. Anthony Richitt, then commanding officer of the Third Precinct. Richitt quoted Zampini as saying the stand was "an Emmitt Warring place."

Last week James K. Hughes, counsel for Zampini, told the court he intended to waive preliminary hearing.

Acheson, on Trip, Will Seek Public Support in Cold War

NYHT News Service

Secretary of State Dean Acheson has decided to carry his appeal for "total diplomacy" against Soviet Russia directly to the public. He will make two major speeches on consecutive days, at the Commonwealth Club, San Francisco, Wednesday, and at the University of California, at Berkeley, Thursday. He also will give an off-the-record talk at the San Francisco Press Club Wednesday night.

This sudden State of public talks is an inmportant departure from his former strategy of accepting speaking engagements only when he had a major policy pronouncement to make.

He had been persuaded that only in this manner can he effictively answer the recent appeals by Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.). Chairman of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, Senator Millard E. Tydings, (D., Md.) and Walter Lippmann, for new approaches to Soviet Russia on disarmament and atomic energy control.

Acheson is expected to contend that such appeals are nothing more than wishful thinking. He may spell out in greater detail what he meant by "total diplomacy," urging an end to political sniping and a marshalling of all national resources to win the cold war.

Several officials in the State Department have warned Acheson that he must get closer to the public. This group has been led by Francis Russell, public affairs director. Recalling that Acheson, when Undersecretary, was so persuasive on the stump that he even made the Marshall Plan sound interesting to an audience in Mississippi, Russell urged that the Secretary take the road again. President Truman's top advisers, including John R. Steelman, fervently agreed.

Crowds Cheer Belgian Princess On Eve of Vote

Brussels, March 10 (AP).—Thousands of Belgians used the arrival tonight of Princess Josephine-Charlotte to demonstrate their faith in her father, exiled King Leopold III.

Belgians will vote Sunday in an advisory referendum intended to guide both Parliament and the King on whether the monarch should return to the throne he left after surrendering his army to the invading Germans in 1940.

The princess was kept waiting in her plane for about an hour, marooned in the middle of the airfield, after the frenzied crowd broke police barriers and encircled the plane, shouting "Leopold, Leopold!"

De Castro Confirmed

The Senate confirmed, unanimously yesterday the nomination of Morris F. de Castro for Governor of the Virgin Islands.

Four Games Open NIT Play Today

New York, March 10 (AP).—Twelve college basketball squads from the East, Far West, Mid west, South and Southwest start shooting for the thirteenth annual National Invitation Tournament championship promptly at 2 p. m. (EST) tomorrow.

Afternoon:

2:15—Western Kentucky (24-5) vs. Niagara (20-6).

3:45—U. of San Francisco (19-6) vs. City College of New York (17-5).

Night:

8:15—La Salle (20-3) vs. Arizona (26-4).

10:00—Long Island U. (20-4) vs. Syracuse (17-8).

The four seeded teams, Bradley—voted the Nation's No. 1 team in the final Associated Press poll—Kentucky, St. John's of Brooklyn, and Duquesne, won't see action until next week. The tournament finals will be next Saturday, March 18.

San Francisco's Dons won last year by beating Loyola of Chicago, 48-47.

Western Kentucky, one of the betting favorites although not seeded, is no newcomer to the NIT, having played in it four times.

Niagara, making its first appearance in this tournament, has a tough assignment against the towering, fast-stepping, high scoring Kentuckians. The hilltoppers are led by their star center, 6-7 Bob Lavoy, who has a 21.5 average on 622 points this year.

Niagara's tallest regular is center Harry Foley, 6-4. Niagara has beaten City College but has lost to St. John's, San Francisco, and Syracuse, among the tournament teams.

San Francisco, after a slow start this season, has taken 13 of its last 15 games. Pete Newell, coach of the Dons, doesn't expect to get much service from his 6-6 center, Joe McNamee, who has been out most of the season with a broken hand. Don Lofgran, the tournament's most valuable player last year, has been filling in at center.

Three other former champions are in the tourney—St. John's, Kentucky and Long Island. Only two have ever won the N. I. T. twice, Long Island in 1939 and 1941, and St. John's in 1943 and 1944.

Gil Coan Leads Off With Noren Hitting 3d

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

West Palm Beach, March 10.—The team that Manager Bucky Harris will unveil five weeks hence in Griffith Stadium as Washington's entry in the American League race, gets its 1950 baptism here tomorrow against the Athletics.

Except for tomorrow's pitchers, an emergency trio, Harris presumes that the lineup he is presenting will fit in exact detail the club that take the field against the A's on April 18 when they start to play for keeps. He hopes so.

Harris is tipping off his batting order for the first time. It shows that Rookie Irv Noren, the expensive purchase from the Coast League, has been installed in the important third-place spot, with Gil Coan in the lead-off role. Here 'tis:

Sam Dente, shortstop.
Irv Noren, center field.
Eddie Robinson, first base.
Sam Mele, right field.
Eddie Yost, third base.
Al Kozar, second base.
Al Evans, catcher.
Conrado Marrero, pitcher.
Dick Weik, pitcher.
Lloyd Hittle, pitcher.

Whether the opposition pitching be right or left-handed, Harris does not intend to disturb his batting order despite the presence of three left-handed hitters.—Coan, Noren and Robinson.

"It's a sign of weakness when you have to juggle your hitters," said Harris, "and I hope we don't have to. Left-handers don't bother Robbie or Noren, and I'll catch what effect they have on Coan."

His pitching tomorrow, more than any other item, holds chief curiosity for Harris. He wants another look at the Cuban, Connie Marrero, whom he last saw in 1947 as a 2-1 winner over Harris' Yankees in Havana. "I hope the three years experience he's gained since then have helped him," smiled Bucky.

Because he has been pitching winter ball in Cuba, Marrero may go as many as five innings against the A's, with Weik and Hittle dividing the other four.

He Wants to See Weik

"The fellow I really want to see in action is Weik," said Harris. "I've heard so many nice things about him, I'm anxious for a look myself. He could relieve me of a lot of worries about our pitching this season."

The Nats' manager brought his entire squad of 30 players to West Palm Beach and won't be sparing in the use of them. Clyde Vollmer and Ed Stewart will also break into the outfield during the two games here, and George Genovese and Sherry Robertson will take over the shortstop and second base jobs during the series.

Before the Nats left Orlando today, Harris put 'em through a rugged two-hour workout, and came up with a yearning to see the uninvited rookie pitcher, Bob McChesney, under fire. "I'm going to give him a chance to pitch the minute he says he's ready," said Harris.

McChesney Makes Hit

The Nats' manager was quite smitten with the 6-foot 2-inch left handed McChesney, whose name isn't on the club's roster. He is the property of the Abilene Club of the West Texas-New Mexico league, which is giving the Nats a look at him and an option to buy.

McChesney, a star end at Hardin-Simmons College and the third draft choice of the Philadelphia Eagles, is turning his back on pro football to give baseball a try. He was a hot-shot pitcher in college and signed with the Abilene Club early this year. He's 21.

"For a kid who never pitched pro ball, he has the smoothest action I've ever seen," declared Harris. "He makes the fast ball buzz, and you'd have to say control isn't one of his troubles. When he was pitching to the hitters today, you could watch him and believe he had been around a long time. I've told Mr. Griffith to buy him."

Scolari Sparks Caps To Victory over Boston

Boston, March 10. — Freddie Scolari sparked a 26-point fourth-period rally which enabled the Washington Caps to whip the Boston Celtics, 76-66, in a National Basketball Association game.

The victory climaxed a steady uphill climb. Boston led, 17-14, after the first period and increased the advantage to 32-29 at the half.

But the Caps started whittling away at the Celtics advantage in the third period as Scolari, Coach Bob Feerick and Don Otten began to find the range, and cut the Celtics lead to 51-50, going into the final quarter.

Scolari pumped in six field goals during the second-half flare-up and ended up with 16 points, one less that Otten. Feerick scored 14.

It was Tony Lavelli, former Yale star, who kept the Celtics in the running with 22 points, the game's top scorer.

The victory was the Caps' second in a row since losing to Boston Tuesday, 75-64.

The defeat was virtually a fatal blow to the Boston playoff hopes.

Bones McKinney of Washington was forced out of the game in the third quarter with an injured thumb.

A. U. Puts 16 In Swim Finals To Loyola's 11

By The Associated Press

Loyola of Baltimore, which has held a three-year monopoly on the Mason-Dixon Conference swimming championship, saw American University touch off the fireworks last night in a major effort to defeat the defending champs.

A. U. put 16 men into the finals of this year's tourney, to be run off today, as compared to 11 for Loyola.

Chuck Bailey and John Briggs of American also each set two new conference swimming records—a total of four for A. U.

Other teams putting men into the finals, and the number for each, were: Randolph-Macon 3, Catholic University and Johns Hopkins, 2 each, and Roanoke College 1.

Bailey set a new 220-yard free style mark of 2:27.8 and a 440-yard free style record of 5:22.1.

Briggs put up a new time of 1:47.4 for the 150-yard back style and a record of 4:05 for the 330-yard individual medley.

Wilt's Spurt Beats Barry

New York, March 10 (AP).—Cagy Fred Wilt outfoxed Ireland's John Joe Barry tonight to win their featured indoor mile race by 8 yards in 4:25 at the 369th Regiment Armory.

Wilt lagged behind the front-running Barry for three quarters then spurted in front. The Irishman, now a freshman at Villanova, had whipped the FBI man the last two times out by outsprinting him.

Norfolk, Va., March 10.—George Washington High of Alexandria was eliminated from the Northern Virginia Group I basketball tournament, 51-46, by Granby High of this city tonight.

The only other Washington, D. C., area team, Washington-Lee High of Arlington, was knocked out in the first round, 34-30, last night by Newport News.

G. W. blew its chances of gaining the finals in the fourth quarter, when the Presidents could score only three points—all on free throws. Granby made good on five straight set shots through G. W.'s zone defense at the start of the final period.

Denver Scores 104 Points But Loses to Sheboygan With 141

Sheboygan, Wis., March 10 (AP). The Denver Nuggets of the National Basketball Association scored 104 points here today—and lost a ball game.

You see, Sheboygan got 141 and set four association scoring records.

The 141 points set a new mark for team points made in a league contest. The former record was 125 made by Syracuse against Anderson November 24, 1949.

The Redskins' total also shattered the total made by any league club in a regulation time game. The old mark was 121 made by Minneapolis against Indianapolis, November 20, 1949.

Sheboygan's 61 field goals broke the mark of 51 it set yesterday against Denver, and today's 51 assists bettered the record of 48, also set yesterday against Denver. The score yesterday was 115-92, Sheboygan.

Forward Bob Brannum scored 41 points for Sheboygan.

Tied for third place in the tournament standings were Walt Burkemo, Franklin, Mich., and Cary Middlecoff, Ormond Beach, Fla. Both posted 140.

Gene Sarazen, wearing the same kind of plus-fours he used 20 years ago, posted a 70 for a two-day total of 145.

Jack Burke jr., White Plains, N. Y., hailed as the man to beat in the tournament because of recent low scores in other matches, trailed Snead by nine strokes. He carded a 34—38, 72 for a two-day total of 146.

Fusari Laces Jimmy Flood

New York, March 10 (AP).—Charlie Fusari, sharp shooting welterweight contender from Irvington, N. J., handed young Jimmy Flood a terrific lacing tonight as he won a unanimous 10-round decision in Madison Square Garden. Fusari was outweighed 158 to 151¾.

Fusari raked the crude but willing youngster with every punch in the book but floored him only once.

That came in the third round when a barrage of blows, climaxed by a left hook to the jaw decked Flood for a nine.

Referee Mark Conn gave all 10 of the rounds to Fusari while the two judges, Arthur Schwartz and Bert Grant, scored it 9-1.

Nevada Denied NAIB Berth After Row Over Gambler

Kansas City, March 10 (AP).—The University of Nevada tonight was denied a place in the National Intercollegiate (NAIB) Basketball tournament which starts here Monday after it had gotten off a hot seat by deciding against using $1000 offered by a Las Vagas gambler to send its team to the tourney.

Earlier in Reno L. B. (Benny) Binion, Las Vegas gambler put up the $1000 today when he heard the university's board of Athletic control was too broke to send the team.

John Cahlan of Las Vegas, a member of the university board of regents, accepted ten $100 bills.

Then the NAIB committee in Kansas City demanded an investigation of the source of the money.

Acting President Gilbert E. Parker telegraphed the NAIB tournament committee:

"Money for Nevada basketball team being raised by benefit shows and subscriptions from local business men.

"No subscriptions over $100. Binion not on this list."

Reporters promptly asked the university head:

"Does that mean Binion's offer was turned down?"

"The money has not been accepted by any university agency for any funds over which the university has control," Parker said.

Bierman Reported Set to Quit Coaching for Director's Job

Minneapolis, March 10 (AP).—Reports were heard on the University of Minnesota campus today that Head Football Coach Bernie Bierman is ready to quit coaching the Minnesota Gophers if the the university should name him athletic director.

The post of athletic director, now held by Frank McCormick, will be vacant on July 1 when McCormick retires. McCormick announced his retirement in November.

A university source who declined to be identified by name said, "yes, it's true, Bierman is interested in the directorship post."

Bierman, however, could not be reached immediately for comment. He had indicated last fall after McCormick resigned and his name was mentioned prominently as a possible successor that he was not interested.

The university source said friends have been trying to persuade Bierman to change his mind and that Bierman finally agreed he would quit coaching if offered the athletic directorship.

The university so far as given no indication when McCormick's successor will be named.

Phils' Closing Drive Sold Fans on Sawyer

EDITOR'S NOTE: The writer of these articles has covered baseball in Philadelphia for many years as sports writer and radio commentator.

By Harry Robert

PHILADELPHIA FANS were startled in July, 1948, by the news Ben Chapman had been fired as Phillies manager. They were anxious when no successor was announced for several days.

SAWYER

The sports pages and air waves were filled with speculation as to the new manager. Big names were bandied about—Bill McKechnie, Bucky Harris, Al Simmons to name a few.

Then the club owner, Bob Carpenter, announced his choice. He was Edwin Melby Sawyer, who had been piloting Phillies' farm teams. As far as Phillies' fans were concerned, Carpenter might as well have hired Joe Doakes.

Sawyer came to the Phils a total stranger to the town.

The fans' attitude was the customary one toward a new manager—tolerant but skeptical. Most of them wondered why the Phils had brought up a "bush league manager."

If they had known Sawyer was a college professor, they would surely have been more vocal in their criticisms. But they didn't know Sawyer had been an associate professor in the science department at Ithaca College for six years, 1937 to 1943. Lucky for the professor that they didn't.

Not even President Carpenter was aware of the ivory tower background of his new manager.

"It never occurred to me I was hiring a college professor," Carpenter told me. "I just knew Ed Sawyer was a fine minor league manager. I was sure he could be a great major league manager. Besides, it's our policy to advance the men in our own organization."

THE PROFESSOR showed them something, too. He had the fastest "top third" of a line-up in baseball—Richie Ashburn, Granny Hamner and Waitkus. All of them can run like frightened deer.

He had another touch of speed in Willie (Puddin' Head) Jones. None of his Phils was slow afoot—Sawyer saw to that.

With the whippet-like runners whirling around the bases, Professor Sawyer, B. S., M. S., mixed bunts and hit-and-run plays so expertly he had opposing infields opening and closing like accordions—usually opening when they should be closed, and vice versa.

The Phils were soon running close to the top—and optimistic fans began to talk pennant.

Then came a catastrophe. An insane girl fan in Chicago shot Waitkus. The brilliant first sacker is fortunate to be alive today.

A discouraging wave of injuries followed. Nicholson, Seminick, Meyer, Miller, Del Ennis, Dick Sisler all were hurt—and there were a dozen minor injuries.

Pitchers Curt Simmons and Charlie Bicknell had to go to National Guard camp for two weeks. The team limped through one Western trip with only 18 men, including seven pitchers.

The Phils dropped out of the running. Then they dropped out of the first division.

The fans began to mutter about "That busher, Sawyer."

SAWYER HAD BEEN parlaying speed with base hits for runs in joblots. Then the Phils went into a paralyzing batting slump. To get any runs at all, the professor had to take longer chances than ever.

One night Bill Voiselle of Boston shut out the Phils for eight innings. With two out in the ninth the Braves led, 1-0. Ashburn got a single. Hamner dropped a short double in right center. Sawyer waved Ashburn on to what looked like suicide at the home plate.

Stanky had the relay before Ashburn had reached third base. But the pressure of Richie's speed made the Boston second baseman throw wide—and Ashburn scored the tying run.

Professor Sawyer doesn't win all his gambles. One night at Shibe Park a runner was shot down at the plate by a Brooklyn throw and the fans snarled their disapproval.

"Well," the professor said philosophically, "we hadn't gotten a hit in five innings. So if we couldn't get in on that one, how would we ever score?"

The wolves' criticism burst into a storm of boos one hot night in August.

The Phils went into the ninth tied with Brooklyn, 5-5. Jim Konstanty, in relief for the Phils, got the first two Dodgers out Then Snider got on, reached second on an error.

That brought up Jackie Robinson, the league's leading hitter. The fans were restive. The professor didn't order Robinson walked—although first base was open and it seemed the obvious strategy. Robinson blasted a home run—and there went the ball game.

"Of course I knew first base was open and that two were out" Professor Sawyer explained, "but I also knew Robinson had never before made a hit off Konstanty. I thought Jim could get him out again. I was wrong."

IF THE PROFESSOR had faced a vote of confidence from the fans at that point, he would have been back in Utica the next day. But his players were all for him, to a man. And he was just as solid with the only votes that counted, President Bob Carpenter and other club executives.

Then Professor Sawyer did for the Phils just what he had always done for their farm clubs. Sometimes his minor league teams looked bad in midseason, too. But when they came down the stretch, they murdered the other clubs.

The Phils were in the second division in late summer, last year. They had a chance for third place, although to most fans it looked like a faint one.

Third place was a dogfight among the Phils, Boston and New York. For about two weeks, the three teams were to meet each other steadily. The Braves and Giants had been poison to the Phils.

The suddenly fiery Phils mowed down their rivals—and clinched third place with a country mile to spare.

Sawyer had made his final sale—to the tough Phillies fans. The worst wolves in the league like Professor Edwin Melby Sawyer, B. S., M. S.

$259 Double Highlights Big Upsets

Charles Town, March 10.—On a program numbering several major upsets, I. G. Davies' Cisred rallied in the stretch and won today's feature, the Berryville Purse.

In the outsider role, Cisred paid $43.60 and drove to a head victory over S. Delisi's Queen May. A length and a half further back came Sylvia Huyett's Frank's Moose in the field of seven.

Queen May and Frank's Moose drew most of the play for the test of about 4½ furlongs.

Cisred, excellently handled by Jockey Willie Herman, was clocked in 0:51 2-5 for the abbreviated sprint route.

Frank's Moose, popular local horse, was making his season's debut and carried 122 pounds. The big fellow alternated in setting and forcing the pace with Cisred. In the midstretch, the son of Bull Moose rallied and appeared headed for victory.

However, Herman roused Cisred and the 4-year-old filly responded to dispose of the high-weighted gelding. Queen May, in close quarters approaching the stretch, finally became clear and she too staged a bold rush, forcing Frank's Moose into third position.

A disqualification marked the fourth race. Mrs. D. N. Buckley's Sprightly, the favorite, got up to win by a nose from Arthur August's Colored Boy but Jockey Donald Boston, who rode J. T. Kirby's Boy Larkmead into third position, registered an objection against Eddie Danhauer, Sprightly's rider.

Sprightly appeared to carry Boy Larkmead wide entering the stretch and the stewards disqualified Sprightly, placing the filly third behind Boy Lardmead with Colored Boy becoming the winner.

Colored Boy, ridden by Jimmy Baird, paid $10.20

The daily double payoff after having been rather low on other days finally reached the "moon shooters" stage today when the combination of 6 and 7 returned $259.20 for the usual deuce investment to 24 ticket holders.

The heavy monetary angle was supplied by Mrs. Katherine McLaughlin's New Hour in the second race at a $105 mutuel. The 8-year-old came from last position in a field of eight to win going away by a neck margin.

Jockey Robert Shirey engineered the closing dash which shunted S. H. Rogers' Halogi into second position a head in advance of Justin Funkhouser's Maid's Son.

Charles Town Lets Cheaper Horses Run

Notices were posted announcing that one race daily for horses which had run with a claiming tag of less than $1000 will be held starting next Wednesday. The notices were in answer to a threatened boycott of the meeting here by horse owners.

How to Beat Races at Charles Town

By Red Smith

OLDSMAR, Fla., March 10 (NYHT).—The first race went to the favorite, an 8-year-old mare that had run once a week for a year and had won once in 51 starts.

The second event was for 4-year-olds and up which had not won since August 31. The rattlesnakes in the palmetto thickets and the horse players in the stands—neither species is numerous enough to constitute a menace at Sunshine Park—lifted their heads and watched an 11-year-old gelding run home.

RED SMITH

The gelding was a favorite, too. Sunshine Park is a mannerly place where the horses and horse players have a decent respect for their elders.

And the favorites win: Almost 35 percent of these races are won by the public choices as compared with 20 percent at flossier Gulfstream Park.

Sunshine is not flossy but it is friendly and neighborly and fun. It has the unstarched comfort of the kitchen where pa smokes his corncob in carpet slippers and undershirt and a pot of coffee simmers on the range. It is the sort of race track where you expect to encounter guys like Joe and Moe. In fact you do encounter them here, only Joe and Moe are not their real names.

JOE AND MOE are working guys. They work around horse parks. One is Irish and the other Jewish and they have been partners and pals for years and years. Chances are the only time they've been separated was during the war when Moe was a soldier and Joe, who served in the Navy in "the other war," went back for a second hitch.

In the occupational questionnaire which we all filled out in those days, Joe identified himself as a dairy farmer, that being the likeliest description of his vocation that occurred to him. If there'd been a labor draft before the Navy accepted him, the Government would have developed Guernseys that could do 6 furlongs in 1:25 3-5 over a fast pasture.

Anyway, Joe and Moe have trouped together through many a rolling season, following the horses from Florida to Maryland to Delaware to Jersey to New England and back again. Wherever they've stopped they have done whatever they could find to do, and they've always managed to find something because there isn't any job on a race track that they can't handle.

Of all the horse parks they know, their favorite is little Charles Town in West Virginia, because Charles Town is, like Sunshine, an informal place and because a horse named Number 8 won a race there one day.

JOE AND MOE had been through a tough meeting in Saratoga and were a mite tracksore when they arrived in Charles Town that season. Moe landed a job selling $3 combination tickets in the mutuels department and Joe got something else, say like custodian of the press box.

"I'll tell you what, Moe," Joe said when the meeting started, "we'll live on your salary and gamble with mine."

Perhaps it should be mentioned at this point that people often get excited at horse parks and, unless the mutuels clerk is eternally vigilant, they sometimes forget to pick up all their change. And even the best-intentioned ticket seller may nod now and then, especially if he is worn out after a tough Saratoga meeting.

Well, after the first week was over and the partners had collected their $50 paychecks, Joe began operations with a $40 bet on the first race. He won and parlayed everything back on the second. He won again, and dumped it all in on the third. There the parlay exploded.

DEEPLY GRIEVED, with only $10 of his wages left, Joe sought consolation at the clubhouse bar. Found it, too. By the time the last race came up, he was ready for further undertakings. He made his unsure way to the window which Moe was tending, and pushed his remaining resources through the grill. It was all hard money, totaling maybe 87 cents.

"Moe," he asked, "how many tickets can I have for this?"

"Joe," said his friend, "how many would you like?"

At the $3 combination window, of course, tickets are sold out of racks, not punched out on a tote machine.

Joe pointed: "Those blue ones are pretty," he said.

Moe handed him a stack of blue ones and Joe went weaving off. He was leaning against the rail when he saw a horse named No. 8 bounce down to the wire all alone. Idly, he rifled his deck of tickets, the fog cleared swiftly from his eyes, the blue pasteboards represented wagers of $96 across the board on No. 8, a longshot.

Joe was first in line at the cashier's window. Then he hustled to his pal's station.

"Figure up fast, Moe," he said, "and tell me how much you're short. We're rich."

"Joe," Moe said, "I've already figured up. And I'm $4 over."

Redland Hunt Races Today

By Harry de Mawby, jr.

The Redland Hunt point-to-point races today mark the opening of the spring season. The races were postponed last Saturday because of frozen grounds.

The hunt will again be held on Dave Martin's Farm, Emory Lane, Oakdale, Md., just off the old Seventh Street Pike between Norbeck and Olney, Md., with the first race scheduled for 2 p. m.

Four events have been carded and the prominent hunts of Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia are expected to send representatives. The Terpenning Cup Pair Race for a lady and gentleman or two ladies at catch weights is the first test, followed by a Gap-hunters Race primarily designed for the smaller fry.

The other events are heavyweight race for riders weighing the featured Redland Bowl Race, open to all.

Post entries will be received until race time. Last year's bowl victor, Chen, owned by T. T. Mott and trained by the well-known leading lady steeplechase trainer Judy Johnson, is expected to be favored over the 4-5 mile course in natural hunting country.

N. C. College Wins in CIAA

Second-seeded North Carolina State College romped, 71-47, over Virginia State College in the semi-finals of the Colored Intercollegiate Athletic Association basketball tournament last night at Uline Arena.

In the second game of the double-header, Bob Wilson's 30 points led West Virginia State to a 66-55 victory over Lincoln. George Moore's 19 was best for the losers.

The two winning teams play this afternoon at 1 o'clock at Uline Arena for the championship.

4 Eagles' Aides Face Indictments In Ohio

Ottawa, Ohio, March 10 (AP).—A dispute within the Fraternal Order of Eagles erupted today into indictments against three national lodge officers.

Brown

Three Grand Aerie officials and an Ohio State Eagles officer were named in nine separate indictments — with charges ranging from blackmail to publicizing a lottery.

The secret indictments were returned yesterday. Prosecutor J. Harry Leopold said they were based on efforts to compel the Ottawa lodge to do these things:

1. Do business with an insurance company and a supply company affiliated with the Grand Aerie, and

2. Engage in a fund-raising campaign which the prosecutor described as a lottery.

The men named in the indictments were Matthew L. Brown of Springfield, Ohio, administrative director of the Grand Aerie; James Kellner of Springfield, secretary of the Ohio Eagles; Joseph Gunderman of St. Marys, Ohio, deputy grand worthy president and Ohio deputy auditor, and Barnett H. Goldstein of Portland, Oreg., Grand Aerie legal adviser.

Goldstein said the indictments "were manifestly secured to satisfy the spite and venom of the prosecuting attorney."

He said they were not justified "in law or in fact."

To this, Leopold, once past worthy president of the Ottawa Eagles lodge, returned no comment.

Leopold and two other Ottawa officers recently were expelled by the Grand Aerie. They were accused of failure to cooperate.

Silver Hill Man's Death by Shotgun Is Ruled Suicide

A 39-year-old crane operator was found shot to death in the yard of his Silver Hill (Md.) home early yesterday.

The body of Walter Leonard Goodman, 5020 Silver Hill rd., was discovered about 6:30 a. m. by his son, William, about 100 feet from the house, Prince Georges County police reported. He apparently had died instantly from a shotgun charge through the heart. Police said the 12-gauge gun was found beside the body.

Doctors Will Discuss Sander Case Sunday

Canadia, N. H., March 10 (AP).—Dr. Herman N. Sander returned to quiet family life in his big white colonial farmhouse today to await consideration of his professional future by the ruling medical body of New Hampshire.

Freed from a charge of murder after the death of a hopelessly woman cancer patient, Mrs. Abbie Borroto., in December, he relaxed with his wife and three children.

But still to come is a hearing before the State Board of Registration in Medicine, which will decide what action, if any, it should take.

Dr. John S Wheeler, State health officer and secretary of the State board, reported the board "will not be swayed by any group"—"we will sit down and make our own decision."

The board's meeting will follow a discussion of Dr. Sander by the House of Delegates of the New Hampshire Medical Society on Sunday. The society has no legal authority, but makes recommendations to the State board, which can grant or revoke medical licenses.

Two of the five members of the State body—Dr. Paul Dye of Wolfeboro, and Dr. Reginald House of Hanover—also are members of the House of Delegates.

The slender, moustached doctor and his pretty ex-nurse wife, who sat with him throughout the 14-day trial, took a "night off," by themselves, before returning to their Candia home and their three girls today.

The physician's secretary, Miss Helen Maciolek, reported many patients delinquent in their bills had paid them since the trial began. A fund being raised for the doctor now tops $11,500. The drive committee will continue accepting donations until $40,000 is obtained to cover the doctor's costs and lost income.

County Police Seek Woman Long Missing

Mrs. Gertrude Nolte, 46, missing from her Prince Georges County home since March 2, was the object of a long but unsuccessful police search yesterday.

For more than five hours county police combed a heavily wooded area within a radius of several miles from the Nolte home at 524 Carmody Hills dr., Carmody Hills, Md.

Mrs. Nolte's husband, Charles, 55, a Washington cab driver; some of his brother cab drivers, and several Seat Pleasant volunteer firemen joined police in the search.

The missing woman is 5 foot 2, weights 100 pounds and has blue eyes and brown hair.

Nolte reported her disappearance to county police on March 2 after he returned home from work and found her gone.

He turned over three letters written by his wife. They were addressed to (1) Nolte, (2) a physician, and (3) police.

Police did not reveal the full content of the letters but said all three were lengthy and suggested that no blame be attached to her husband if anything happened to her, according to Lieut. Elon Turner, head of the Marlboro substation.

Turner said Nolte expressed fears that his wife might have taken her life.

County police drew a blank when they asked Pennsylvania State police to check with relatives of the missing woman in that State to see if she had visited them since her disappearance. She hadn't.

Married for about 20 years, the Noltes have no children.

Police said they were called to the Nolte home last January 18 after Mrs. Nolte slashed her wrists with a razor blade.

They quoted Nolte as saying his wife had been under the care of a physician and had undergone several operations in recent years.

Va. Motorist Before Court After Chase

A race between a mounted park policeman and a motorist wound up in Municipal Court yesterday with the main issue still in doubt.

According to Pvt. John J. Conlin of park police, he cantered up to a car parked illegally on Canal rd. near Foundry branch Thursday shortly after 4 p. m.

The car was driven off as he approached and Conlin gave chase astride his 4-year-old gelding, Count Richelieu.

The officer told reporters he was gaining while the going was uphill. But as the road leveled, the car shot further ahead.

During the race, the auto hit another car a glancing blow and sped on finally outdistancing the officer who having obtained the license tag number broadcast a lookout.

Later, Oscar G. Mayes, a mechanic of 605 Park ave., Falls Church, appeared at the Seventh Police Precinct Station and complained that his car was stolen.

Acting on information supplied by Conlin, the precinct police held Mayes until Conlin arrived and identified him as his race rival.

Mayes was charged with failure to make his identity known at the scene of an accident; disobeying an officer's signal; failure to yield right of way and making a false report. The case was continued in Municipal Court for one week with bond set at $400.

Sen. Douglas Drafts New Plan to Tighten Leaves of U. S. Workers

Senator Douglas (D., Ill.) is drafting a new plan to beat down what he believes are "excessive leave privileges" of Uncle Sam's 1,500,000 classified and per diem workers.

"I've been giving a lot of study to this problem," he said yesterday, "and I believe a graduated system of annual leave based on years of service would be a better way to handle it. The older employes both need and deserve a longer vacation than a young and new worker."

Several key Federal officials are known to look with favor on a liberal system of graduated leaves based on seniority. They opposed Douglas' original plan to give all Federal workers 20 days vacation and up to 12 days sick leave annually—a proposal sidetracked Thursday in the Senate.

But the Illinois Senator said he wasn't sorry that he took his leave-cutting fight to the Senate floor.

"We succeeded in getting a public discussion of this problem," he explained, "and now many people agree with me that we're pouring a lot of money down the drain to maintain this excessive leave system." He estimated his original leave plan would save the Government 100 million dollars a year.

"I haven't given up the fight. I'll be back again and when I do I'll be better prepared. I haven't given enough thought to a graduated leave system to conclude what would be fair for everyone."

The Administration has maintained a neutral attitude during the leave controversy.

STORY: The National Rural Letter Carrier carries this amusing story:

A Kansas farmer called a rural carrier to ask if the mail would be delivered as usual on Lincoln's birthday. The carrier said it would be. The farmer commented that the day was usually a holiday, and asked:

"Don't you observe Lincoln's birthday?"

"No," replied the carrier, "but we observe Washington's birthday.

"Huh," snorted the farmer, "Abe Lincoln musta' been a Republican!"

Rural Electrification Administration is drafting its own program to train people to handle its rural phone program. Experienced phone people are difficult to hire . . . Albert E. Meininger has retired after 43 years of Federal service. He was procurement supervisor in Navy's Research Laboratory here . . . Dr. Clayton D. Hutchins has been appointed specialist in school finance in the Office of Education. He has been with the National Education Association . . . George Washington University has a $750 fellowship open for a woman graduate student who expects to enter Government service.

Dr. H. H. Bennett, chief of the Soil Conservation Service, told the House Appropriations Committee:

"We have tried to move our personnel as fast as we could out of our Washington, State and regional offices—out into the field, close to the job. In 1942, 72.5 percent of our people were in the field. Today it is 87.6 percent in the field, and if there is any chance to increase this number up to 90 percent or better, we will do everything we can to bring it about."

BATTLE: The Treasury yesterday joined with the leftwing UPWA in opposing the bill to require the Bureau of Engraving and Printing to select plate printer apprentices through a Nation-wide competitive test. The Civil Service Commission asked that apprentice exams be restricted to a reasonable basis and that veterans, as well as nonveterans be allowed to compete in this.

Treasury officials rejected a request by Chairman Murray of the House Civil Service Committee to postpone the promotion exam until the committee acted on the bill. AFL leaders indorsed the bill to select apprentices through a Nation-wide test.

ARMY: The civil functions staff of the Army Engineers here would be whittled from 410 to 369 civilian employes under the President's budget. Its field civilian force would be dropped from an average of 41,470 to 40,664 employes.

Restaurateur Jailed, Fined In Tax Case

Sam Wong Gets Year, $20,000 Fine; Formerly Operated 3 D. C. Cafes

Baltimore, March 10 (Spl). Sentence of a year and a day in prison and a fine of $20,000 was imposed today on Sam Wong, former Washington restaurant operator, for income tax evasion.

He was convicted here a week ago by a Federal Court jury before Judge W. Calvin Chesnut on charges that he evaded a total of $96,472 in taxes for the years 1942 to 1945, inclusive.

Wong will serve only three months if he pays the fine within 30 days, the court ruled. Norman P. Ramsey, assistant United States Attorney, told the court that Wong has gone into bankruptcy and it is unlikely the taxes and penalties can be collected.

Until his trial, Wong was operator of the Quonset Inn, 3225 Naylor rd., Silver Hill, Md., where he lives. In the period when the tax evasions were alleged, he operated the China Clipper, once in the 1000 block of 14th st. nw.; Duke's restaurant, 1334 14th st. nw., and The Dragon, 1329 G st. nw.

At the trial, Wong contended that a vast increase in his alleged net assets came from contributions by Chinese persons in Washington, and several took the stand to support the contention. Wong is a native of Baltimore.

A feature of his trial was appearance under Government summons of a platinum blond "confidential adviser," Mrs. Mildred McCurry Hill, who now lives near Asheville, N. C. She testified that when she was in Wong's employ he gave her a mink coat, an expensive car, other furs, jewelry and proceeds of a rooming house she operated for him.

2 Brothers Rout Prowlers With Gunfire

Two youths, native Washingtonians of Chinese extraction and ex-GI's, routed a burglar early yesterday, and one may have wounded him with a .22 caliber rifle.

The boys are Kenneth, 23, Air Force veteran and graduate accountant, and Raymond, 22, Army veteran and accounting student, both sons of Mrs. E. C. Lee. She is a widow and proprietor of the North Capitol Laundry, 1518 N. Capitol st. The family lives upstairs.

About 5:30 a. m., Mrs. Lee told police, she heard a noise of someone breaking in below, and sent her sons down, both armed with .22 caliber rifles. They had bought the weapons after previous breakins at the same place.

Kenneth went to the front door and Raymond to the back, police were told. Raymond said he met an intruder emerging from the back door, who fled across an alley and climbed a fence. As the burglar climbed, Raymond fired, he said, and heard the man shout "Oh, God!" However, the burglar kept going, with Raymond in pursuit. The youth fired four more shots, but the man escaped.

Police investigation showed the burglar had already broken through three doors, and the transom of a fourth, preparing to enter the laundry, when he was interrupted. Police notified hospitals and physicians to watch for a wounded man.

Mrs. Lee said an attempted burglary occurred in 1948 when Kenneth was home on leave and he frightened the burglar away. The same thing happened in 1949, she said, when both boys were home on leave, and they caught the burglar.

Ground Breaking At Christ Church Set This Sunday

Ground for the new parish hall at Christ Church, Alexandria, where George Washington worshipped, will be broken in unusual ceremonies at 11:45 a. m. Sunday.

The Rev. B. B. Comer Lile, rector, and members of the clergy and choir, will lead the congregation to the site as the concluding part of the regular Sunday morning worship service. The site, in the southeast corner of the churchyard, will be outlined with white chalk.

After the parishioners have distributed themselves around the site, each will be given a small shovel. The congregation then will turn up the earth covered by the chalk at the same time.

Known as Christ Church Memorial Parish Hall, the new building will cost more than $150,000.

A Bolling Air Force Base private was fined $100 and received a 30-day suspended sentence yesterday in Arlington County Court, on charges of driving while drunk.

Pvt. Robert Edgar Donaldson was given an additional 30-day suspended jail sentence on a charge of simple assault. Donaldson nearly knocked down Officer Bernard Keyes with his car about 3 p. m. Thursday, as Keyes directed traffic.

Trade Board Paper Urges 1 Fund Drive

Gives Support To Suggestion Of Community Chest

New impetus for the proposal of a single drive in Washington for funds for charities was injected yesterday by an editorial in the Board of Trade News, official organ of the Washington Board of Trade.

Though editors said they acted on their own, without official sanction of the board, the editorial strongly urged the single drive instead of the many now taking place.

The Community Chest, several days ago, announced it would be open to a meeting with other organizations which raise funds here in separate campaigns, with the idea of unifying the philanthropic effort. The Chest raises money for more than 100 social agencies, but for several years has not reached it goal.

The Board of Trade News editorial cited a letter of Walter L. Fowler, District Budget Officer, to the commissioners complaining of the constant pressure on District employes for funds for charities. Fowler did not question worthiness of the individual organizations but cited "considerable dissatisfaction" among District employes "with this ever-mounting number of appeals for contributions."

"Unless something is done," the Board of Trade News editorial said, "there may be a general dearth of contributions to such charitable enterprises."

Numbers Slips Bring $25 Fine or 10 Days

Hayward Robertson, 30, of 1603 9th st. nw., yesterday was sentenced in Municipal Court to $25 fine or 10 days on charges of possession of numbers slips.

Robertson was arrested February 10 on a traffic charge. The slips were found on him after he was brought to the Thirteenth Precinct Police Station.

Welfare Aid Being Denied To Children

Local Facilities Overcrowded Now; Foster Homes Scarce

Small children from condemned slum areas such as Bell ct. nw. have crowded District welfare facilities to the point where they are unable to take in any more children.

Ten families in Georgetown's Bell ct. were ordered to move out last month after the buildings were found unsafe by the Board of Condemnation of Insanitary Buildings.

District Welfare Director Gerald M. Shea said yesterday that the families, unable to find other dwellings, have broken up and the children turned over to the welfare department.

With the slum area children and the usual number of dependent and neglected children referred to the department, a total of 125 applications for help were received last month, an all-time record.

Shea said the Industrial Home School annex on Loughboro rd. nw. is one above its capacity of 150 children. There is a continuing shortage of foster homes although the department has funds to pay for the children, he said.

The aid of private agencies has been enlisted to take care of the youngsters until other arrangements can be made, Shea said. Some of the children have been sent to St. Elizabeth's Home in Baltimore.

Says Root

Highwaymen For E. Capitol St. Bridge

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

The battle of the Anacostia Bridges turned yesterday to talk of "highwaymen."

The double-barrelled word was thrown into a House District subcommittee hearing by Irving C. Root, superintendent of National Capital Parks, as he argued against a bill to build a bridge at East Capitol st.

After he used the word twice in referring to those who had planned the East Capitol st. bridge, Representative John J. Allen, jr. (R., Calif.) asked with a grin whether he meant it in the traditional sense.

Word Has Two Meanings

"I understand the word has two meanings," said Root with an answering smile. "Please use your own judgment."

The District government, with the backing of the U. S. Public Roads Administration, is supporting the East Capitol st. bridge bill. Park and planning officials oppose the East Capitol st. location and favor instead a bridge over the Anacostia River at Massachusetts ave. se.

Root also proposed that as a final alternative a vehicular tube be built under the river instead of a bridge if the East Capitol st. location must be used. District Highway officials guessed a tube might cost 4 to 5 times as much as a bridge. Root later said the cost might be too great, but that it was certainly an idea worth studying thoroughly before the bridge is built.

Might Hurt Sports Center

John Nolen, jr., planning director of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, opposing the East Capitol st. bridge, presented maps to show how the bridge would cut through portions of the long-planned sports center area near the District armory.

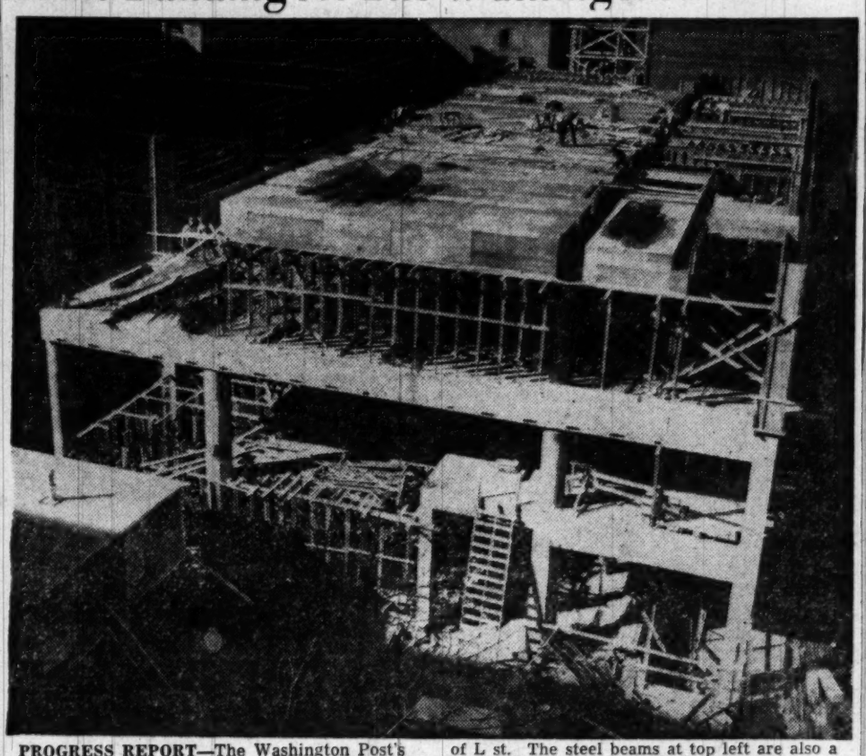
He said running a main traffic artery through the sports site "would be like trying to conduct business in the House chamber with the public going through the middle aisle."

"That wouldn't add much to the confusion," drawled Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.).

Nolen estimated the East Capitol st. bridge would cost close to four million dollars more than the Massachusetts ave. bridge.

The hearing will be resumed at 10 a. m. Tuesday.

Home-Building for The Washington Post



PROGRESS REPORT—The Washington Post's new home, 1513-21 L st. nw., is rapidly taking shape. This is the view from the south side of L st. The steel beams at top left are also a part of the structure. The building has grown past the third story.

$130,333 Gifts Lift Red Cross Total to 26%

Donations Bigger Than Last Year But Coming in Slower

New gifts of $130,333 yesterday pushed the slow-starting Red Cross campaign total to 26 percent of quota.

This is still behind last year, when 38 percent of quota had been subscribed at about this time. This year the goal is 12 percent higher than last year.

The new gifts brought the total subscribed to $279,394 of the $1,039,000 goal. Last year at this time $360,180 had been contributed.

Drive leaders at the third report luncheon in the United States Chamber of Commerce Hall of Flags received some encouragement from the fact that gifts are averaging higher this year than last.

Portraying the Red Cross as "an expression of all that's really American," Jennings Randolph of Capitol Airlines called for full support of the campaign in a luncheon speech before some 300 workers.

He predicted the drive would "go over the top because the cause is right."

In percentage of quota, City division paced all others with 35 percent.

Meantime, 11 new units went over their quotas, among them six Navy Department units.

From the Navy they were Bureau of Ships, Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, Judge Advocate General, Military Sea Transportation Service, Bureau of Yards and Docks and Bureau of Aeronautics.

The Navy Department as a whole has now subscribed 75 percent of the quota.

Other new over-the-top units were Library of Congress, Office of Chief of Chaplains of the Army, Solicitor's Office of the Interior Department, Naval Medical Center and Solicitor's Office Department of Labor.

Next report luncheon is set for Tuesday.

District Court Asked to Stop Civil Service Test

Five veterans yesterday asked District Court to call off a March 15 civil service test for apprentice plate printers at the Bureau of Printing and Engraving.

The veterans asked for an injunction on the grounds that eligibility is restricted to holders of certain jobs such as elevator operators, messengers, and guards. The veterans say there should be no restrictions.

According to the action, the Government claims the examinations are promotional in nature, which the plaintiffs deny.

A hearing on the request for an injunction is scheduled Tuesday.

Woman Gets 18 Months in Fatal Abortion

A 46-year-olds woman was sentenced yesterday in District Court to serve 18 months to five years in prison for performing a fatal abortion here.

The defendant sentenced is Mrs. Mildred J. Agee, 46, of 1316 5th st. nw. The woman who died as the result of the illegal operation was Mrs. Willian M. Williams, 26, of 1314 11th st. se.

In imposing sentence, Judge David A. Pine pointed out that Mrs. Agee was apparently not a "professional" abortionist and had no prior record. Also, he said, the victim, through a sister, had pleaded for the operation because she had two other children and was in financial straits.

Earl V. Holloman, 33, no fixed address, was sentenced to serve four to 12 years in prison by Judge F. Dickinson Letts for two holdup robberies, netting $335 in loot last year.

Leroy R. Glover, 23, listed as residing at 620 L st. ne., received 20 months to five years prison for joyriding. He has a prior criminal record.

Mrs. Lila M. Stewart, 34, a former choirsinger of 23 K st. ne., received two to six years prison for check forgery, fraudulent impersonation, and lifting letters from a mailbox.

Hearing Society to Hold Classes for Children

Post Building Steel Doesn't Worry Expert

But Lillis Would Like More Elbow Room to Put 450 Tons in Place

Jim Lillis is something less than awe-struck by the mere 450 tons of structural steel he's feeding into The Washington Post's new home at 1513-21 L st. nw.

Lillis would like to have a little more elbow room in which to swing those girders but otherwise the job is no pain at all. The wiry, leathery-faced little steel boss has been heaving steel since 1912.

He set 45,000 tons of it into a Marietta, Ga., bomber plant during the war. In 1928 he climbed 42 storys with the stuff to frame the Hotel New Yorker in New York City.

At the Washington Post's new quarters, Lillis has to worry only about the steel roofing and four stories with a 70-foot frontage. The rest of the eight-story building with a total of 120 feet fronting on L st. will be framed with reinforced concrete.

Can't Scare Him Any More

Anyway, there's nothing much left in the business to scare the 57-year-old foreman after the Oakland Bay bridge job in 1933. It took four years for him to get over that one.

Lillis was 140 feet up in the air helping cap a giant cylinder when a sudden blast of pressure blew him into Oakland Bay. Fished out from the shark-infested waters five minutes later, Lillis was found with broken legs, arms, pelvis and collarbone.

He regained consciousness five days later and enough strength to go back to work four years later. At that, Lillis feels lucky. Three other men with him died in the blast.

Plenty of Work in D. C.

In Washington, which doesn't go in for skyscrapers and 7-mile long bridges, Lillis has found plenty to keep him busy for most of the past 12 years. In fact, he says, that's why he's stayed in Washington—plenty of work. He lives with his wife and three children at 3014 Adams st. ne.

Yesterday, Lillis and his crew made ready to haul a giant 80-foot truck crane out of the excavation of L st. The towering machine had placed all the girders it could without sealing itself into the new structure. It'll have to lay the next set of girders from the outside.

Near the steel crew, the reinforced concrete part of the building was fleshing out. It has grown past the third story with construction workers laying on the frame for the fourth.

Court Orders Return of Loot To Beckley

Judge Mathew F. McGuire ruled yesterday that Richard H. Beckley, 69, retired detective sergeant is entitled to the $6700 recovered after the $70,000 burglary of his home.

Defendants named in the District Court civil suit were Oliver James 24, and his brother, Stance James, 29, both of whom were sentenced to serve three to nine years in prison for the Beckley burglary.

Taken last year from Beckley was a safe, $60,000 in cash, $10,000 in jewelry, $100 in old coins and 1000 shares of railroad stock.

Only $4500, and a 1948 Cadillac purchased by the James brothers and later sold were recovered.

Both Jameses protested their innocence and said that they made their living from illegal sales of liquor among other things. Stance also said that he had hit the numbers for $10,500 and that this explained his sudden affluence after the January, 1949, burglary.

When Judge McGuire heard this, he directed that the United States Attorney make an investigation. Stance said that he earned $5600 yearly. Oliver said that he made as much as $13,000 a year.

Colds Start Record Rush On Doctors In D. C. Area

Medical Bureau Reports Big Rise In Respiratory Ills During February

Coughs, colds and could-be influenza have been keeping doctors here on the go.

The high incidence of upper respiratory ills was confirmed yesterday by Theodore Wiprud, secretary of the District Medical Society.

The society's Medical Bureau, which steers the ailing to their nearest available doctor, answered some 600 telephone requests for doctors yesterday, Wiprud said. The number, mostly from sufferers of colds and kindred complaints, contrasts with a seasonal daily average of between 350 and 400 daily calls.

Yesterday's calls were the second highest number recorded in the Bureau's nine-year history. The all-time high was recorded last Sunday numbering 746 requests.

In February, the medical bureau answered 13,050 requests, 3000 more than the month's average.

Despite the rush to the doctors, Wiprud said, the bureau has been able to furnish physicians.

Health Department officials said school absenteeism this week has held to about 15 percent, some 6 percent higher than the seasonal average.

For the most part, the cases are not reported as influenza. The symptoms generally are more severe than common colds; high fevers prevail, but the illnesses are shorter than normal influenza duration.

3 Convicted For Having Obscene 'Art'

The flowing lines of unclothed women photographed in provocative poses contribute to the upward curve in sex crimes, Municipal Judge Armond Scott ruled yesterday in finding three news dealers guilty of possession with intent to sell obscene pictures.

The defendants, arrested last November 4, were Herbert Benjaman, 603 15th st. nw., James E. Lassiter and Mark Gerber, both of 1206 New York av. nw.

Benjamin was sentenced to $200 fine or 90 days. Action on the other two was deferred after Defense Attorney David Rein contradicted the alleged terms of a stipulation entered into during the preliminary hearing several weeks ago.

Produced in evidence were a number of postcard-size "girlie" photos revealing ordinarily concealed areas of flesh.

"Whether a matter in any given case is obscene is a question of fact," Scott wrote.

"In the case at bar, the court finds as a fact that the photographs complained of are obscene. They are not mere nudes. They include photographs of nude women . . . posed in a suggestive manner likely to excite sexual impulses"

The court held "the defendants pandered to the lewd and lascivious for profit" and continued "the court cannot accept the proposition that community morals are so corrupt, or the public conscience so depraved that the conduct of the defendants in this case can be tolerated.

"Further it is common knowledge that sex offenses, with an alarming amount of attendant violence, are among the most pressing and difficult law enforcement problems of the day. Admittedly, the photographs which the defendants displayed and offered for sale have no artistic or other legitimate use, and serve only to emphasize this condition . . .

"To acquit the defendants of the charges against them, would in effect, amount to judicial indorsement and encouragement of conduct which promotes this type of crime."

The opinion then cited the deleterious effects indiscriminate sale of such photos would have on the minds of children.

Insurance Man Collapses, Dies on Street Near Home

Herbert G. Kaiser, about 64, of 3904 Jocelyn st. nw., collapsed and died on the street near his home last night.

Mr. Kaiser was president of the United States Treasury Beneficial Association, an insurance group which deals chiefly with Treasury employes. He also was connected with a renovating company here.

A native of Chicago, he entered service of the Federal Reserve Bank there soon after it was formed, and came to Washington with the Treasury shortly after World War I. He retired from the Bureau of Internal Revenue about 5 years ago. Friends said he is survived by a wife and son in Chicago.

Action by Two Jurors Upsets Verdicts

Mistrial Declared In Arson Case Here As One Man Dissents

A lone juror's shout of "Not Guilty" yesterday caused a mistrial to be declared in the prosecution of Richard R. Baker, 47, accused of setting fire to Tex's Grill, 1361 H st. ne., to collect the insurance.

The jury foreman had announced that Baker was guilty of two counts of arson and other jurors concurred in this finding until the last talesman was polled as to his verdict.

This juror, James Simpson, 48, of 2620 P st. nw., then twice insisted that Baker was innocent. Finally, he said:

"I do not think that Baker is guilty."

Judge T. Alan Goldsborough then declared a mistrial which will result in a second prosecution of Baker who resides at 935 Massachutts ave., and was the majority stockholder in the grill. The fire occurred July 5, 1949, with about $5000 damage resulting.

Two others pleaded guilty before the trial. Baker, an ex-convict, insisted that he was inocent.

The trial in District Court lasted all week. This morning the jury took the case after instructions by the judge. One juror was excused because of ilness, the other 11 sent to deliberate.

Almost five hours later, the jury was still deadlocked. for conviction, and one for inocent during much of this time. Finally, it was said, the jury was ready to report itself deadlocked with Simpson alone insisting on acquittal.

Then, the juror said, Simpson decided to vote with the others and the jury came before the judge shortly before 4 p. m.

After hearing Simpson's dissent, the judge said that he had no alternative but to award a mistrial.

Conscience Disturbs Jury Member So Finding Set Aside

A 30-year-old man who had been convicted of taking indecent liberties with his 8-year-old stepdaughterd was freed yesterday after a repentant juror announced that his conscience would not let him sleep.

Judge James W. Morris of District Court set aside the guilty verdict against Louis Reaves of 1806 M st. nw. The United States attorney's office then moved for and obtained a dismissal of the charge to free Reaves completely.

Reaves had been convicted earlier in the week of the morals charge against the little girl who took the stand against him.

Judge Morris said that he was setting the verdict aside on numerous grounds.

He said that a juror, Francis X. Barry, 27, 935 Kennedy st. nw., a real estate salesman, had come to him to say that he was unable to sleep the night after the verdict.

The jurist quoted Barry as saying that he knew that least one perhaps two jurors agreed with him and were upset as a result of the conviction.

Judge Morris said that the jury had been deadlocked for several hours. He was informed that during that time one juror had said he would "never let the defendant go free." This juror, according to the judge's informant, had disclosed during the jury deliberations that his own daughter had undergone an experience similar to Reaves' stepdaughter.

The judge said that he also did not believe that the evidence could support a guilty judgment.

Also, said the judge, the corroborating evidence was circumstantial and might imply that Reaves was innocent as much as that he was guilty.

Tar Heels Ponder Ideas For Mad Hatter's Ball

By Nicha Soure

THE TAR HEELS are going to be hat-happy next Saturday night.

The March 18 party has been designated for another of the North Carolina's State Society's Mad Hatter's Balls to be held in the large ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel. Dancing will be from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m. with the Grand March of the Mad Hatters enlivening the evening.

The members, hatful of ideas, are planning everything in mad bonnets, from capricious bird cage affairs to the gayest headgear fashioned from steel wool and even lettuce festooned with carrots.

Prizes will be awarded to the funniest women's hats, the funniest men's hats and to the most laughable hat.

THE Kentucky Society of Washington will hold a dance in the large ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel on Friday from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m.

The Grand March will be led by Col. and Mrs. Basil Cooper. Preceding the dance, at 9:30 p. m., a movie, "Your Kentucky," will be shown.

THIS month's dance of the New York State Society, one of a series spotlighting Government agencies, will honor the Postoffice Department.

The dance will be held tonight in the Main Ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel. A reception will be held at 9:30 p. m., to be followed by dancing from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m.

MISS M. Patricia O'Conor, Free State princess for the Cherry Blossom Festival, will be guest of honor at the Maryland Day dance of the Maryland State Society tonight. Miss O'Conor is the daughter of Senator and Mrs. Herbert R. O'Conor.

The dance will be held in the West Ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel, teeing off with a reception at 9:30 p. m., to be followed by dancing at 10 p. m.

Receiving guests with Mrs. Winifred Grant, president of the society, will be Mr. and Mrs. William R. Clay, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Strickland, Mr. and Mrs. Leland G. Worthington, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Coad, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kuhn, Mr. and Mrs. James Foster, Mr. and Mrs. J. Howard McGrath, Miss Marie Keese, Miss Miriam Abell, Miss Margaret E. Dronenburgand and Mrs. Eleanor Owens.

Further information about the society or the dance may be obtained through Mr. Clay at Johnson 3-5923.

THE Delaware State Society has slated its monthly business session for Tuesday, March 14, at No. 2 Scott Circle, 8 p. m.

On the business calendar will be a discussion of the society's plans for participation in the Cherry Blossom Festival and plans for a reception and banquet for Delaware's Cherry Blossom princess.

IT WILL BE a St. Patrick's Day Dance for the Pennsylvania State society when the group meets in the West Ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel on March 17. Dancing will be from 10 p. m. to the music of McWilliams' Orchestra.

Further information about the society may be obtained from Mrs. Ray J. Whitney at Glebe 2629 or from Mrs. Algia A. Martin at Otis 7455.

ON WEDNESDAY members of the Massachusetts Society will launch a series of weekly dinner get-togethers at the Madrillon Restaurant, 15th st. and New York ave.

From 5 to 8:30 p. m. a section of the restaurant will be reserved where Bay Staters who are dining out may join their friends or where new arrivals from the Cape Cod State may locate old friends already settled in Washington. No reservations will be necessary.

Horn Far Better Than Young Man

By Richard L. Coe

"YOUNG MAN WITH A HORN," at the Warner, is the sort of picture you wish were good, but you must admit right off the bat that it's not.

It's a screen adaptation of Dorothy Baker's popular novel about a young trumpet genius, presumably suggested by the late Bix Beiderbecke. Kirk Douglas plays the fellow and Harry James' trumpet comes through the soundtrack, but though there are any number of good, soaring licks on the brass, the story and its handling are false and trite.

The idea Carl Foreman and Edmund H. North were striving for was the search for perfection, the locating of an unreachable world by a trumpeter. This, surely, is novel. To the central character his trumpet is part of him; through it he speaks what's in him.

And because his trumpet thrives in a hothouse world, an unreal world, there must be something unreal about those around him. I don't recall the details of the Baker original, but I do know that it was the mood and atmosphere which gave it spirit. In forming the screen play, the writers have had a tough problem. To make clear the man's feeling of living apart and to make his friends understandable to an audience, these have been made average people, average reactions. What takes the fellow briefly but fatefully from his trumpet, is an unlikely creature, a spoiled, rich female fitfully studying psychology and dabbing in the arts.

We have seen how the man grew up in a lonely, wandering fashion and how one night the chance sound of music brought him to life. Then he heard a great Negro trumpeter, became his protege and rose quickly in the profession. He's popular, if apart, but when his songstress girl friend introduces him to that rich girl friend of hers, he quickly marries her and his trumpet career goes bloole. There is, of course, a happy all-for-the-best ending.

Now the things that are wrong and which make the picture seem endless stem from the writers' efforts to balance on a straight line, the opposite of their hero's personal strivings which are, in a sense, the reverse, a freedom of motion and thought, a search. This sense of balance, vital to most pictures, is exactly the wrong approach for such a story as this.

Apart from Lauren Bacall's ridiculous role, the playing is better than the script. Kirk Douglas is sincere but never quite believable as the man with the horn. There's a fine performance from Juano Hernandez, as the old trumpet master, and Hoagy Carmichael once more plays a philosophic pianist. Doris Day sings, but has little to act.

Because "Young Man With a Horn" so patiently strives to be different, it is all the more a pity that it's so flat as it is.

"YOUNG MAN WITH A HORN." A Warner Brothers release. Produced by Jerry Wald. Directed by Michael Curtiz. Screen play by Carl Foreman and Edmund H. North, from the novel by Dorothy Baker. At the Warner.

MRS. PAUL KREH and her 16-year-old daughter, Charlene, of 9017 1st st., Silver Spring, won that "Most Charming Mother and Daughter" contest at the Capitol Theater . . . Meanwhile, the picture which prompted the contest returns to F st. this morning at the Columbia.

ROLAND ROBBINS, seriously hurt in an auto accident Tuesday night, is still in a coma at Garfield Hospital . . . The Trans-Lux manager and the constantly faithful host to President and Mrs. Wilson while he was Keith's mentor, has countless friends in Washington's theater world who are all pulling for him.

THE JOHN LODGE who appears opposite Marlene Dietrich in the Dupont's revival of "The Scarlet Empress" next Wednesday is quite a different fellow from the John Davis Lodge, now a member of the Connecticut delegation in the House . . . Strictly speaking, it's the same Mr. Lodge, but that acting career he left behind when he went into the Navy during the war has gone with the chemical changes that give us that new body we get every seven years, as Physiology I used to teach . . . It's slightly embarrassing to be making love to Marlene in one part of town and to be conducting serious business in another, and Lodge ever has been one to talk much about his glamorous past . . . "That's over," he says . . . Connecticut members of Congress will see the film Tuesday night at a special screening.

SOUND BY HARRY JAMES: Kirk Douglas makes with the trumpet, Doris Day with the songs, while the Harry James music hits the soundtrack in the Warner's "Young Man With a Horn"

School Sites Running Out, County Told

An Arlington County P-TA Council committee yesterday warned that the county will run out of adequate junior and senior high school sites, if it doesn't act immediately to acquire the few remaining available ones.

Only three "reasonably satisfactory" sites are left for such use in Arlington, the committee said, and "any day one or all of these sites may become a new subdivision or apartment project."

In a report in the council's organ "County Counselor," the committee said the total junior and senior high school population will increase 50 percent in three years, and will be nearly double in six years.

"One and perhaps two senior highs, and two junior highs in this period are a must," it concluded.

A $4,750,000 school bond issue, approved in 1948, will be exhausted by planned elementary buildings, the Stratford Junior High School now under construction, and additions at Washington-Lee and Hoffman-Boston senior high schools, according to school officials.

Members of the special committee on high school sites, appointed by the County Council of Parent-Teachers Associations include: Howard Gammon, Ralph Clark, Mrs. Charles Corcoran, School Superintendent William Early, Assistant Superintendents Charles Walsh and Edward Braun, Vernon Robnett, Lance Hooks, William S. Harris, Raymond Colton and P-TA Council President Warren Cox.

Suburb Setup Called Bar to Area Progress

Special-purpose districts in suburban Washington—such as sanitary or fire districts—hinder solution of over-all area problems, members of the American Society for Public Administration were told yesterday.

Dr. Joseph M. Ray, head of the University of Maryland's government and politics department, asserted this during a discussion on coordinating local government programs. Montgomery County Manager Irving G. McNayr was chairman of the session.

Matthias E. Lukens of the Port of New York Authority had declared that civic needs lead to even larger authorities. In New York, he pointed out, the evolution was from agreements between cities and boroughs to an authority including parts of two States.

Dr. Ray said from the floor he did not think this "evolution theory" would work out in Washington.

An agency such as the Sanitary Commission is "not responsible to any given electorate," he pointed out, and is "extremely difficult to disestablish," he said.

Speakers at the Public Administration Society meeting, held at the Statler Hotel, included TVA Chairman Gordon R. Clapp, who said Near Eastern nations must decentralize their governments to make real economic progress.

In another session, J. A. C. Robertson, principal Undersecretary of the British Treasury, described the British Civil Service in a panel which included Harold H. Leich of the U. S. Civil Service Commission. John J. Corson, assistant business manager of The Washington Post, was chairman.

G. W.'s 'Noah' Lacks Touch Of Fantasy

One of the world's oldest stories, the Flood, is the subject of the George Washington University Players' salute to International Theater Month. The play is "Noah," which will be repeated tonight at Lisner Auditorium.

This version of the Old Testament Deluge is by France's Andre Obey, who wrote it in the early '30s, several years after Roark Bradford and Marc Connelly gave us "The Green Pastures." It is an artfully simple play and the GW version benefits immensely from the playing of Henry Daniłowicz in the title role.

But in accenting the simplicity, via a setting largely of steps, the production misses the fantasy quality the script should have. Lighting has been sparingly varied and the dances and postures do not come naturally. Granted that the width of the Lisner stage is difficult to cope with and that only intensive training can bring easy grace to stage dancing, there is a stark, wooden quality about the performance at variance with the fluid script.

However, seeing the play is an interesting experience if only because its choice aptly reminds us that the theater the world over can serve and does serve the same purpose. One can't help musing, while watching this "Noah," of the innumerable times, places and styles which have repeated this oft-told story of man's inability to destroy his baser nature.

The Danilowicz Noah is well and sincerely spoken and the player has the added advantage of a mobile body. A large company enacts Noah's family and the pairs of animals which were passengers on the Ark.

The performance also is a feature of "Religion in Life Week" at the university.—R. L. C.

Aid in Drafting Grocery Rules Invited by FTC

By S. Oliver Goodman

The Federal Trade Commission yesterday invited anyone connected with the grocery business to send in suggestions or proposals for trade practice rules for the highly competitive industry.

Major national organizations in the grocery industry, the FTC said, already have selected representatives to work with the commission. Now the FTC wants to hear from the "little man."

All persons interested in these fair trade proceedings, the FTC said, "will have full opportunity to propose changes, amendments, or additions to rules before they are finally approved by the commission. Prior to final action, an appropriate draft of proposed rules will be published and made available by the commission to all interested persons, with opportunity for study and for hearing."

Representatives serving on the industry committee cooperating with the FTC include these Washingtonians and their groups:

Harold O. Smith, jr., and William A. Quinlan, United States Wholesale Grocers Association, Inc.; Watson Rogers and Paul F. Myers, National Food Brokers Association; Carlos Campbell and H. T. Austern, National Canners Association; Newell W. Ellison and William Eden, National Association of Food Chains; Lawrence S. Martin and John H. MacVey, National Association of Frozen Food Packers.

WEEK'S SALES: Washington department store sales in week ended March 4 dipped 1 percent under the same period last year, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported. For the four weeks ended March 4, local sales were unchanged. Regionally, the Fifth Reserve District showed a drop of 2 percent for the week and a decline of 3 percent for the four-week period.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: James W. Haley has resigned as general attorney of the National Coal Association, Washington, to become vice president of the Jewell Ridge and Virginia Smokeless Coal Cos. of Tazewell, Va. . . . Oscar Whitehouse, former secretary of the union employers section of Printing Industry of America, Inc., will join the Label Manufacturers National Association of Washington on April 1 as assistant secretary . . . James W. Carkner has been elected chairman of Pepsi-Cola Co.'s executive committee . . . Eugene Flack, advertising director of Sunshine Biscuit, Inc., will address a meeting March 23 of the Washington Personnel Association in the Mayflower.

ODD LOTS: Strikes over the last six months have cost the auto industry production of more than 700,000 vehicles, Ward's Automotive Reports estimates . . . Ford Motor Co. is reported planning to establish an auto assembly plant in Israel expected to produce 2000 cars a year . . . Investment banking interests have asked a Federal Court to set an early date for trial of antitrust charges brought against them 2½ years ago . . . National Airlines has inaugurated specially programmed music for passengers (that's the line that spreads a red carpet for boarding and leaving a plane).

GM RECORDS: General Motors Corp. reported payrolls and employment were at record peacetime levels last year. In a statement issued in advance of the corporation's annual report, GM said 1949 payrolls totaled $1,440,690,450. This compared with $1,283,865,090 in 1948 and the previous high of $1,380,032,467 in war time 1944. The average number of salaried and hourly-rated employes on the payrolls last year was 401,326. This compared with 380,329 for 1948, but was less than the figures for the war years of 1943 and 1944.

EARNINGS: Standard Brands Inc. reported net income of $8,189,138 or $2.34 a share for 1949, compared with $7,277,727 or $2.05 a share in 1948. Other earnings statements:

Montgomery Road Hearing Set for Today

With a hearing on Montgomery County's proposed strengthened road ordinance set for today, interest flared yesterday on both sides of the controversy.

County heads anticipate a day-long session of the public airing of opinion to begin at 9 a. m. at Rockville Courthouse.

The new proposals, to replace the ordinance enacted in 1946, call for improved road construction plus the addition of sidewalks, storm drainage, tree planting and street signs and a change from rolled to vertical curbs. Also included are a requirement for posting a performance bond and a clause covering penalties.

Support More Vocal

Citizen support of the measure, lagging behind organized opposition by building interests, has became more outspoken as the hearing date neared. Several phoned The Washington Post.

Complaints have come from widely separated sections about road failures, lack of sidewalks and other shortcomings.

The builders have been marshalling their forces for an attack on the "gold plated street" ordinance. Public support has been wooed through mass meetings, newspaper advertisements and public utterances.

Reports have come from citizens of roads constructed by builders as recently as six months ago which are now "impassable." Others called attention to the many patching and re-patching jobs required to keep some roads open.

Sidewalks Wanted

The almost universal lack of sidewalks in residential sections was cited by citizens who complained that their children must walk in the streets in muddy weather.

The performance bond requirement is hailed by many citizens as a workable "brake" on the expanding operations of unstable building concerns. The county recently was forced to accept for maintenance streets in a subdivision which were abandoned before completion by a company which had to go out of business at public expense.

Other residents have complained about half streets lying uncompleted for many months while subdivisions delay finishing the job until they "get around" to putting up houses across the street.

Tax Watchdog Unit Set Up by Trade Board

Formation of a Municipal Research and Tax Department to survey constantly the District government and keep taxes from rising, if possible, was announced yesterday by the Washington Board of Trade.

Officials said the new division will go to work within a week, with a staff of two municipal government experts and clerical help. It will be directed by William H. Press, the board's executive secretary.

At the same time, in the Board of Trade News, the organization announced it is publishing a pamphlet itemizing its points of opposition to the pending Kefauver home-rule bill for the District. The bill, passed by the Senate, is now held up in the House.

Commenting editorially on the new municipal research and tax department, the Board of Trade News said:

"The cost of operating the District government has roughly doubled in 10 years . . . During 1949, the District Unemployment Compensation Board paid benefits of $3,960,758, the largest amount ever issued."

Fairfax School Budget Up to $2,670,902

A Fairfax County school budget for 1950-51 of $2,670,902 will be handed the county board of supervisors for approval, it was learned yesterday.

The budget is an $80,429 increase over the current $2,590,473 outlay. School officials reported, however, that no increase in taxes will be necessary.

Largest increase in the budget is a $224,340 jump in teachers' salaries. The budget calls for hiring of 50 new teachers, plus a $100 salary boost for all teachers.

The county now has 469 teachers, whose salaries come to a total of $1,434,650. With 519 teachers to be employed for the 1950-51 session, instruction costs are pegged at $1,658,990.

School officials expect an enrollment increase of more than 4000 pupils next year. Enrollment as of December 1, 1949, was 12,945.

The budget contains no money for new construction or additions to schools. A proposed $10,500,000 school bond issue, originally scheduled to be put to referendum, is hanging fire until Falls Church's annexation suit against the county is settled.

As a result, officials said, double shifts may become necessary by next fall. The school board, however, has nearly one million dollars earmarked for school construction out of the State Literary Loan fund, when it is replenished. It also expects to get more than $700,000 in State grants.

Truman Will Address Federal Bar Group

President Truman accepted yesterday an invitation to address a dinner of the Federal Bar Association at the Hotel Statler here April 24.

The association is made up of Government lawyers. James E. Palmer, jr., special assistant to the Attorney General, is president.

Walsh Brands Red Methods 'Sinister'

The Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, regent of the Georgetown School of Foreign Service, in a speech last night in Gaston Hall, lashed out strongly at the Soviet practice of inducing the "paradox of self-accusation" in political prisoners.

Speaking on the subject of "Christianity and Sovietism" in the third meeting of the Georgetown graduate forum, Father Walsh cited as examples the recent trials of Robert Vogeler and Edgar Sanders, and that of Cardinal Mindzenty, . . . "an uncompromising figure of a saintly churchman, who became in 30 days a broken, self-accusing penitent and threw himself on the mercy of a usurping power . . ."

The result of this "macabre form of diabolism," Father Walsh continued, is that mankind is confronted by "some hidden process capable of killing the completely developed personality of a mature man and substituting another mind subservient and responsive to the will of the conqueror, all achieved with the apparent consent of the victim . . ."

"This tampering with blood, flesh and nerves ending in the domination of the mind to a prescribed pattern may well turn out to be a more sinister triumph of the (Russian) Revolution than all its territorial and political conquests."

Father Walsh is a recognized expert on Russian affairs having served there as Director-General of the Papal Relief Mission to the U. S. S. R. during the Russian famine of 1921.

The next speaker in the series, which has as its general topic "Sovietism as a Philosophy and Technique," will be Jan Ciechanowski, former Polish Ambassador to the United States, on Friday, March 17.

McCullough Drops Drunk Case Appeal

Annapolis, March 10 (AP)—Attorney Robert W. McCullough of Washington, D. C., and Prince Georges County today gave up his battle for acquittal on charges of reckless driving, drunken driving and being drunk and disorderly.

McCullough

State's Attorney James C. Morton, jr., announced that McCullough dropped his appeal to Anne Arundel County Circuit Court from fines levied last summer by Trial Magistrate Norman Hazard at Galesville. Circuit Judge Benjamin Michaelson later ordered the payment of $179.30 in fines and court costs.

McCullough lives at 4614 Addison Chapel rd., at Beaver Heights just over the District line. He has offices at 808 H st. ne. and at Marlboro.

He was arrested by Anne Arundel County police last May while driving through Parole, two miles west of Annapolis, and booked in Annapolis Magistrate's Court. The case was later transferred to Galesville for the hearing.

Police Private Fined $100 on Liquor Charge

Police Pvt. David M. Brown, 48, of the Eighth Precinct, yesterday was ordered to pay a $100 fine for being under the influence of alcohol while on duty.

Brown pleaded guilty before a police trial board and made no statement in his own defense. Suspended early Wednesday morning, shortly after the offense occurred, he was restored to active duty yesterday afternoon.

Trial Board proceedings against three other policemen were postponed.

Lieut. David O. Fletcher of the Eighth Precinct, told the board that Brown failed to report off duty at the station house at midnight Tuesday night. A half hour later, he was found in the office of the assistant manager of the Shoreham Hotel and had a strong odor of alcohol on his breath, Fletcher said.

The lieutenant added that Brown was suspended immediately. He then volunteered to the board that Brown has always been an excellent policeman. On the force for 24 years, brown lives at 732 Roxboro pl. nw.

A police-civilian trial board hearing on charges of willfully maltreating and using unnecessary force on a prisoner, brought against Paul McEwen and John W. Harrison, plainclothesmen attached to the Third Precinct, was postponed until 2:30 p.m. next Friday.

Proceedings against Pvt. Philip L. Thomas of the Eleventh Precinct for inefficiency were also postponed for one week.

Air Force Group to Dine

The first dinner-dance of the District Air Force Association, the Cardinal Squadron, will be at 6:30 p. m. today in the Continental Hotel. Walter W. Hubbard, managing editor of the American Motorist Magazine, will speak.

Two Charged With Deceiving Debtor Clients

Two Washingtonians were charged yesterday with using deceptive practices in collecting information about delinquent debtors.

The complaint was issued by the Federal Trade Commission against Robert O. Bennett, "trading as National Service Bureau," and Lillie K. Bennett, both of 504 Aspen st. nw. They use 505 Colorado Building as their mailing address, according to the complaint.

Their method, the FTC charged, is to mail form letters to debtors on the letterhead of "The National Service Bureau" stating that if an enclosed questionnaire is answered they will receive a check for money deposited for them with the bureau.

On receipt of the questionnaire, the complaint said, a check for 10 cents is sent the debtor.

The Bennetts were given 20 days to file answers to the complaint.

3 Youths Accused Of Breaking Into Arlington Home

An 18-year-old Arlington boy has been charged with breaking into the home of Lloyd Mayers, 3156 N. Pollard st. on February 15, Arlington police reported yesterday.

He is Richard Earl Appleby, 3213 Old Dominion dr., according to police. They said two youths who allegedly aided Appleby are under arrest in Pecos, Tex., where detainers have been forwarded by Arlington.

The others were identified as Donald Halliday, formerly stationed at Andrews Field, Md., and Wayne Hoon, 3215 N. 22d st., Arlington.

Mabel Boardman Home Sold To U. S. Hungarian Federation

The Mabel Boardman town house at 1801 P st. nw. has been bought by the Hungarian Reformed Federation of America for a headquarters, it was announced yesterday.

It marked the passing for other uses of yet another landmark and social center of the Dupont cir. area.

The federation will move in this June after a $50,000 remodeling job is completed, Dr. Francis Ujlaki, president, said.

The property was bought in December for $90,000 Ujlaki said. He stated that when the federation tried to buy it two years ago the asking price was $250,000.

At the time of Mrs. Boardman's death in 1946 the property was assessed at $139,720. The last assessment, Ujlaki said, was $100,000—of which $76,000 was for the land, $24,000 for the house, a three-story terracotta and brick building.

Mrs. Boardman was Red Cross national secretary. The property was left to the National Cathedral Foundation.

The federation is a fraternal organization, Ujlaki said.

The reception room will be used to conduct Hungarian church services.

Sale of the property was handled by the H. L. Rust Co.

Politics Called Key to Federal Teacher Aid

Bess Furman, Washington correspondent of the New York Times, last night urged teachers to get into politics to get favorable action on Federal aid to education.

She said friends of hers in Congress believed aid to education would miss such favorable action in the House Labor Committee by only one vote. Politically active teachers, she said, could swing the balance.

Miss Furman was the guest speaker before several hundred teachers at the opening session in the Shoreham Hotel of the Northeastern Regional Conference of the classroom teachers of the National Education Association.

Welcoming the Visiting teachers, Superintendent Hobert B. Corning explained some of the peculiarities of Washington. "Nobody in Washington votes for anything," he said. "We take things pretty much as they give them to us, but we pay for everything."

In spite of this, Corning said, Washington has "good, clean government."

This morning the meeting will split into discussion groups. The meeting will end this evening with a banquet at which Dr. Willard Givens, executive secretary of the N. E. A., will be the principal speaker. The council represents 10 northeastern States and the District.

'Reynolds for Senate' Club Organized Here

Some 150 to 200 persons last night organized a "Reynolds for Senate" club here to back former Senator Robert R. Reynolds of North Carolina in his attempt at a comeback.

Reynolds has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination against Senator Graham (D., N. C.).

Though he was here earlier in the week, Reynolds did not attend the meeting. He sent a message of greeting. Wesley E. McDonald, former secretary of Reynolds, was elected chairman of the club.

License Board Hears Appeal By Detective

The alleged beating of an admitted gambler at police headquarters last September 30 was hashed over again yesterday before the District License Board.

Occasion was the hearing of an appeal of Earl A. Douglas whose application for renewal of his private detective's license was denied because of Police Department disapproval.

According to testimony given yesterday, denial was based on the complaint of Alfred B. Vincent, 46, of the Dunbar Hotel, admitted gambler, who said he had been beaten last September 30 by Douglas and former Detective Sergt. Ernest R. Amos, Jr.

Vincent said Amos arrested him, locked him up at headquarters and then took him to the robbery squad room where both Amos and Douglas beat him.

Douglas testified Vincent had been arrested in connection with a case on which both he and police were working. Douglas and Amos each testified Douglas had not touched Vincent during questioning in the squad room. Amos admitted knocking Vincent down when the latter swung at him.

Amos was broken to the rank of private a few days later and transferred to No. 7 Precinct. Although acquitted of the beating charges by a police trial board a month ago, he is still a private.

The hearing was continued to April 10.

Court Rejects Name Plea of 'Jesse James'

Union, Mo., March 10 (AP).—A Missouri circuit judge dismissed today J. Frank Dalton's request to be known as Jesse Woodson James—the notorious outlaw of 70 years ago.

Judge Ransom A. Breuer said for 25 years in the last century the James gang went unapprehended and Missouri became known as a place "where criminals run at large and go unapprehended."

He said if the 102-year-old Dalton really is Jesse James let him "retreat to his rendezvous and ask his good God to forgive him." If Dalton is not James, Judge Breuer added, he is "trying to perpetrate a fraud." But, the 80-year-old judge said, "there is nothing for this court to pass on here."

"If Dalton was James in the old days and has never had his name legally changed, it's impossible to change his name back to what he already had," he said.

Three aged witnesses testified Dalton really was Jesse James. Jesse E. James, Los Angeles, asserted son of the outlaw, contested the action "to protect his name." He charged Dalton sought publicity for a concern where he is a tourist attraction.

Doctor Fined $5 in Death of Man, 90, by Car

An Alexandria physician yesterday was fined $5 for failing to yield the right of way to a pedestrian who died after being struck by the doctor's car February 20.

Dr. William A. Fuller, 29, of 715 S. Washington st., pleaded innocent to the charge in Police Court before substitute Judge Harry F. Kennedy.

The pedestrian was 90-year-old Freeman Murray of 813 Princess st. He died at Alexandria Hospital less than 24 hours after he was struck down while crossing the street at Washington and Oronoco sts., Alexandria.

The police report showed that Dr. Fuller's car skidded 34 feet after striking Murray. It was 6:22 p. m. and the weather was clear, according to the report. Dr. Fuller, who is a civilian physician at Fort Myer, said he was going between 20 and 25 miles an hour at the time of the accident.

Testimony Completed In Harry Bridges Trial

San Francisco, March 10 (U.P.).—Prosecution and defense in the Harry Bridges case finished presenting all evidence and testimony today.

In the sixty-eighth day of trial, the eight-man four-woman jury was excused for the weekend by Federal Judge George B. Harris. Monday at 10 a. m. the final arguments will begin. The prosecution has indicated it will need a day and a half for argument. The defense wants at least four days.

Riding Stable Closes; Called Health Menace

A riding stable at 1428 Rock Creek Ford rd. nw., that had been called a health menace and fire hazard will be closed in 30 days, the owner told the District License Board yesterday.

After a license revocation hearing last month, the board gave Mrs. Pauline Russell 30 days to make improvements. Yesterday she reported she was unable to meet requirements. The board gave her 30 more days to move.

The Uninvited

We do not like the kind of folks . . . Who never let us know . . . When they decide to ring our bell . . . To sort of say hello . . . Who come without a warning or . . . The least apology . . . And barge right in to force us to . . . Accept their company . . . Or those who join our table in . . . A tearoom or cafe . . . Without an invitation or . . . A courteous display . . . We know how nice it is to get . . . Surprises now and then . . . But there are times when we should say . . . When folks may call again . . . For everybody has the right . . . To ask and to expect . . . A sense of good behavior and . . . Appropriate respect.

Has Consumer's V-Day Arrived at Last?

As I went by the city desk the other day, one of our strawbosses stopped me.

"Boy," he said, "the war is really over. You ought to write a piece about how obliging merchants are to their customers these days."

"For example?" I probed.

"Well, for example I stopped in the Kinsman Optical place yesterday to leave my glasses for repair. But the guy saw I'd be lost without them, so he fixed them right on the spot.

"He not only put in the missing screw that holds the lens to the frame, but insisted on fitting the glasses properly, because I had bent them out of shape.

"He wouldn't let me pay—said he was glad to be of service—and the funny part of it is that I didn't even buy my glasses there, and he didn't know me from Adam. You ought to write a piece about stores like that; there's a postwar trend toward that kind of service."

"Yeah," I said, "I'll write it this afternoon. But first I have to take my jalopy over to McKee Pontiac and get a new generator."

I was reconciled to the expenditure because in 15 years of driving I have never had generator trouble without being told: "It's shot. You'll have to buy a new one."

But the mechanic fooled me. After a quick examination he said: "This shouldn't take long. It merely needs adjustment."

And sure enough, in a few minutes the generator was working fine. "How much?" I asked the floor boss.

"Nothing at all, sir," he replied. "We don't believe in charging a fee every time a mechanic picks up a screwdriver."

I am beginning to think that the chap on the city desk has a good point. Maybe the war really is over, after all. Ain't it wonderful?

FIGHT FAIR, YOU RASCAL

Comdr. Robert W. Safford, USNR, of 3611 Chevy Chase Lake dr., Chevy Chase, Md., writes:

"Every time I turned my head yesterday, I was reminded of your items about starch in shirts. The next time my laundryman picks up my dirty shirts, he's going to find this note attached to the bag:

"If you feel you must,
That inevitably you MUST cut
at my throat,
Come in courageously. With a knife.
We'll see whose neck gets cut.
But do it like a man.
Not surreptitiously,
Not infinitesimally—with starch
And tiny saw-blades in my collar.
NO STARCH, I say. No starch at all.
Not now. Not ever.
DO

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

I fail to understand how it can be legal to drive with the back window of a car covered with snow. Doesn't the law require that each car be equipped with a rear-view mirror whose function it is to enable the driver to see out of his back window?

Bradley J. Bell
1380 Fort Stevens dr.

Dear Brad:

Yep, Section 145 of the Traffic Regulations says you've got to have the rear-view mirror (or mirrors) but apparently our lawmakers forgot to spell out the requirement that the rear window be kept clear of snow, so that the mirrors can serve their purpose.

Maybe they assumed that anybody with a grain of common sense would figure that out for himself. But unfortunately, not all motorists behave like reasonable adults. Bill

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

U. S. Reported Wary of 2 Britons

By Drew Pearson

Ambassador Lew Douglas made a special visit to the Pentagon this week to discuss with Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson the idea of withholding United States military secrets from new British Minister of Defense Emmanuel Shinwell and from British War Minister John Strachey.

DOUGLAS

The two British cabinet members are colorful left-of-center Labor Party politicians, one of them accused of having Communist connections, but with enthusiastic followings in England. Shinwell is a hot-headed British Pole, representing Ramsay MacDonald's radical mining constituency and thoroughly hated by the British general staff.

When Shinwell moved from the Ministry of Fuel to the War Ministry, Winston Churchill said hopefully: "When he was Minister of Fuel we had no fuel. Now that he is Minister of War perhaps we will have no war."

Strachey is now under fire from Lord Beaverbrook's London Evening Standard for "failing to renounce your known Communist views." In reply Strachey, who was once held up on Ellis Island as a suspected radical, said he was never a Communist Party member and repudiated Communist doctrines in 1940. In his new post he is in charge of counterespionage.

These appointments come on top of the jitters given our joint chiefs of staff on British security over Dr. Fuchs, whose tips to the Soviet enabled the USSR to set off a bomb five years ahead of American estimates.

Rabbit Story

Behind closed doors in the House Labor Committee, blunt-spoken Representative Graham Barden of North Carolina was arguing the merits of his new Federal-aid-to-education bill, which would prohibit Federal spending for any school buses, public or parochial.

"When I was a boy in North Carolina I had to walk 3 miles to school," Barden recalled. "However, it didn't seem very long because I got so I could run the whole 3 miles. My classmates didn't consider a fellow much good if he couldn't run all the way to school in the morning."

"That's nothing," drawled Indiana's homespun Andy Jacobs. "Before I could even start for school my father used to send me out to catch a rabbit for breakfast. Sometimes I'd have to run as much as 5 miles before I caught up with that rabbit.

"Then, I'd reach down and feel his ribs. If he wasn't fat, I'd let him go and take out after another rabbit."

More Tax Fraud

Another income tax evader exposed in this column was finally collared by a Federal grand jury last week, when Earl Sheriff, the former sheriff of Prince Georges County, Md., was indicted.

This commentator first exposed Sheriff on June 26, 1949, for having "received money from the gamblers who do such a lucrative business right under the nose of the Nation's Capital," and for having failed to pay income taxes on it.

The Sheriff case illustrated how United States attorneys sometimes fail to prosecute after a case is sent them by the Justice Department. And on October 26, 1949, this column further revealed that United States Attorney Bernard Flynn in Baltimore had sent the case back to Washington, indicating that he was opposed to prosecution.

On January 29, 1950, this commentator also called public attention to the fact that Flynn's name was before the Senate Judiciary Committee for reappointment as United States attorney, and suggested to Senators that they investigate why Flynn had not prosecuted the former sheriff of Prince Georges County for income tax fraud.

In the end conscientious Lamar Caudle, in charge of Justice Department's tax division, sent two of his attorneys to Baltimore and demanded that the case be pushed. Last week Sheriff was indicted.

Can't Slap Backs

Senator Frank Graham of North Carolina, who has made as great an impression on Congress as any newcomer on Capitol Hill, faces a tough reelection battle. Graham, a former president of the University of North Carolina, has turned out to be a fine Senator, but is a babe-in-the-woods as far as politics is concerned. He doesn't know how to slap backs, raise money or roll logs.

Furthermore, he gives so much of his money to charity that he has almost no funds with which to run a campaign, and the other day had to borrow from his wife's savings account. So far, organized labor, whom he has supported, hasn't lifted a finger to help, nor has there been even a whisper of help from the White House—despite the fact that Graham has just as consistently supported President Truman as his colleague, Senator Hoey, has opposed him.

The Washington Post

You'll feel better you'll do better you'll look much better in a hat!

WITH A HAT this man automatically achieves more poise and distinction.

WITHOUT A HAT same man is too casual for his companion's groomed appearance.

THE CASE FOR HATS

Look Magazine frankly discusses the pros and cons

"To see ourselves as other see us"—LOOK Magazine has compiled a remarkable series of unretouched photographs showing how the absence of one important article in a man's attire—his hat—influences his complete appearance. With every other element identical, these unstaged comparisons should easily help men to decide for themselves whether or not to wear hats. Certainly, most men will want to make "THE HAT TEST" themselves.

In all, this provocative four-page feature shows men how to choose the proper hat for their individual face-types, how to derive more satisfaction from the new hat styles and explodes the popular misconception that hats cause baldness. (In fact, hats protect the hair and scalp from dust, grime.) You owe it to yourself to make the "Yes" or "No" test. We think you'll agree, you'll feel better, look better in a hat!

Hats for Youth—Yes or No?

The pictures above show a young salesman. Without a hat he looks immature. With a hat, left, his appearance takes on more substance and authority. LOOK quotes from a recent survey that showed executives and professional men were top among occupational groups preferring to wear hats. Re-kindled interest of college men reflects new style appeal, awareness of "better dress" importance.

Is a hat "Good Business"?

LOOK points out that "correct business attire demands a hat". The photos above, taken directly from its four-page feature, highlight the fact that "the hat makes the difference"! The same man (upper right) appears boyish and less business-like without a hat. Most companies find it a good business policy to request that employees be properly groomed.
